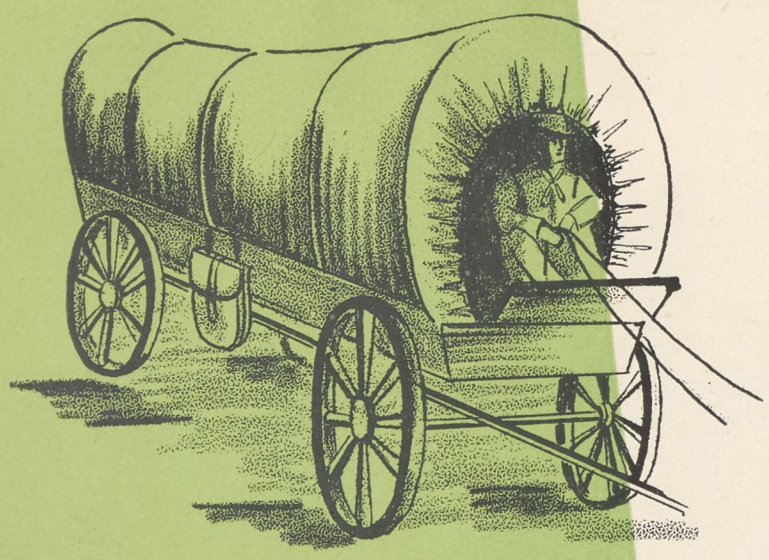
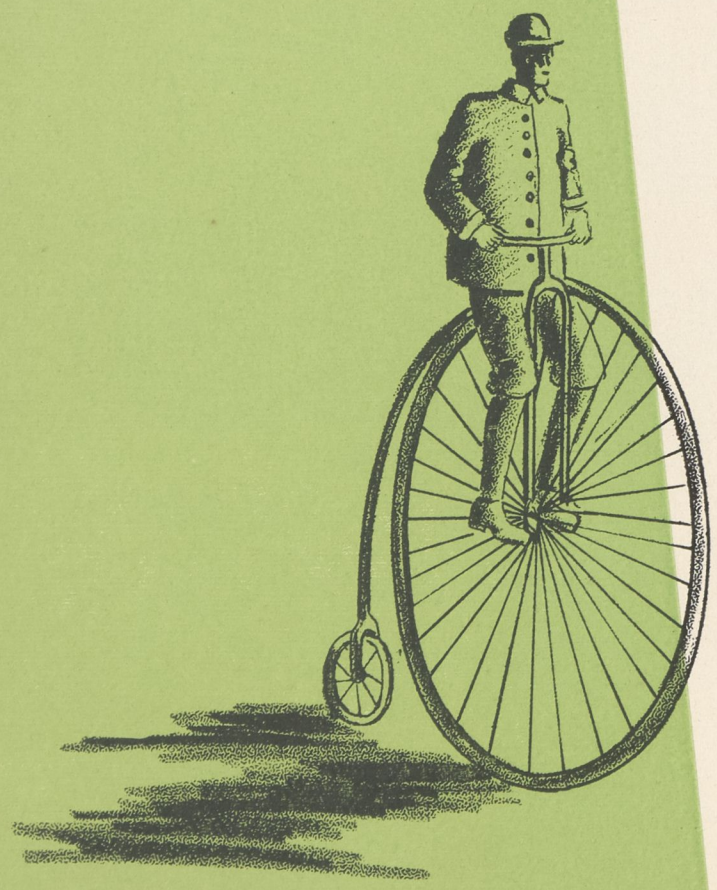
F ARATA





Foreword

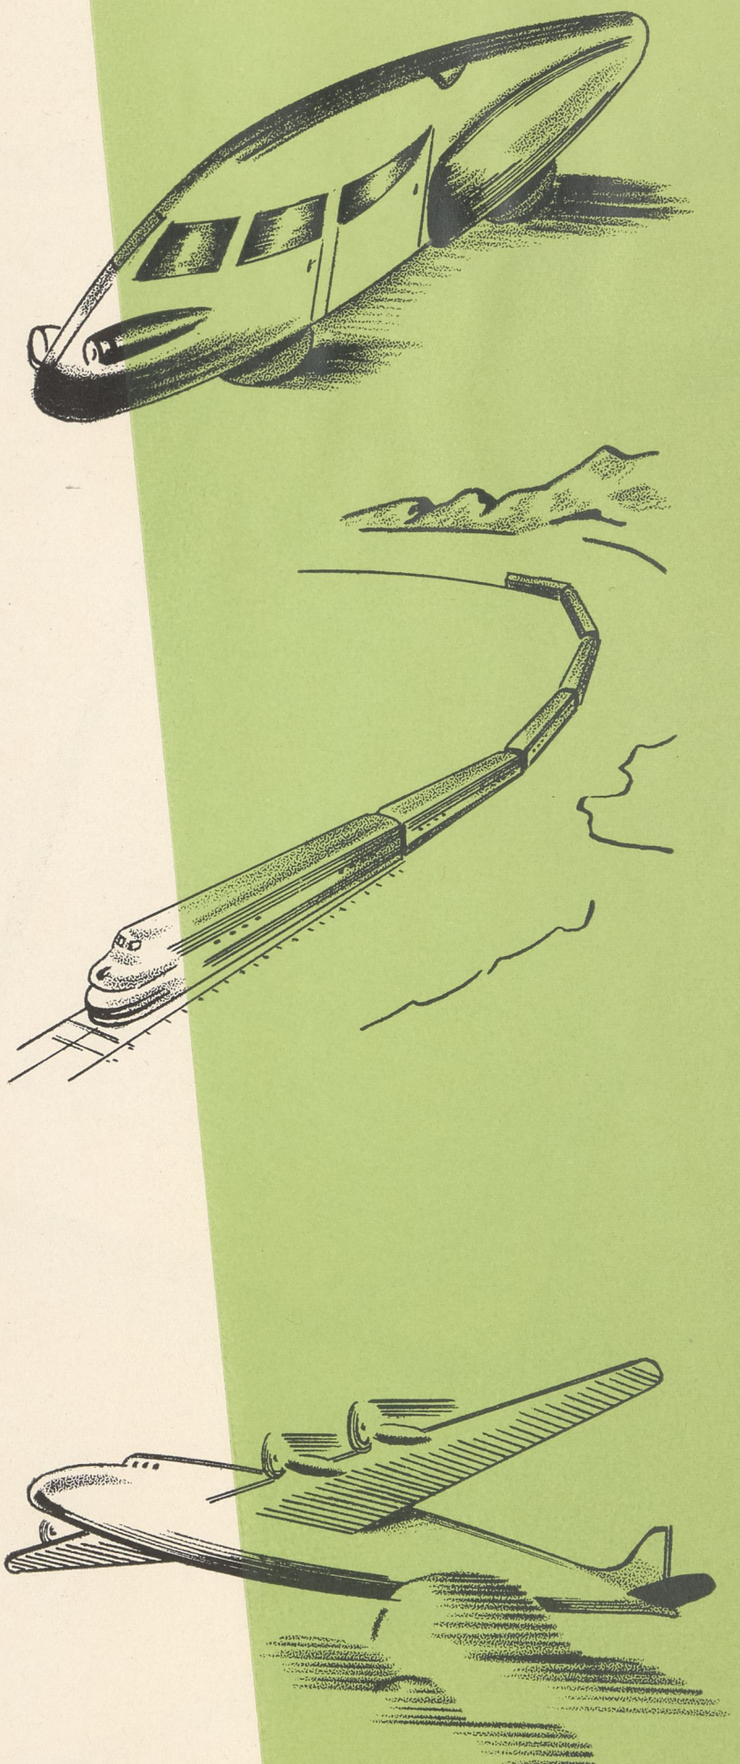
The sun has just been buried in its grave of blue; the wind has forgotten its cunning, and the pine no longer frets; a lavish hand has sprinkled midnight with a powdered drift of stars, and a feverish soul is hushed by a sylvan calm. Aspiration is beating against the stars, and all the world's a symphony.

A new day dawns in the full bloom of life. The petals of yesterday have now shriveled into the past; tomorrow is an unopened bud that is filled with new possibilities. The future is but a seed, not yet planted, of unknown quantity. But today—today is a gorgeous blossom of beauty and fragrance.

5/66-g. Dr. Harold Cook Binkley Estate

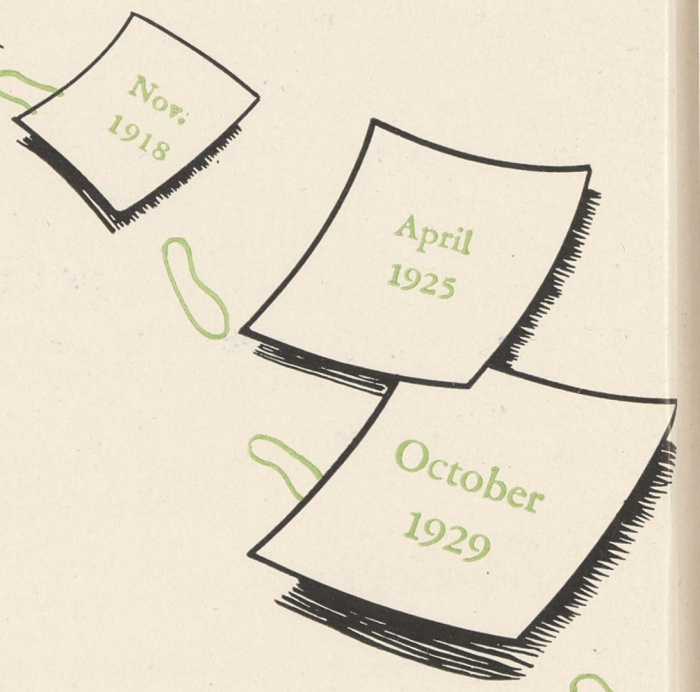
Dedication

To Progress, then, we dedicate this volume of memories . . . to Progress and you the students on College Hill who are preparing yourselves now for lives of usefulness. May you go forth to undertake each new enterprise with a keen remembrance of the last; may you find the burning desire for truth to be ever your heavenly torch; may your eyes be fixed unflinchingly on that distant goal you strive for; and when night comes, may you go to rest in peace, in the knowledge that you have done your best.



5/66-9 De. HAROLD COOK BINKLEY ESTATE

LOOKING



ALL of us pause frequently to look back and review our experiences, perhaps without knowing why. Sometimes what we find is pleasant to us—at least those are the things we most enjoy—but always there are the things we would prefer to forget. Whatever else, then, a view into the past may mean, it should also be a gauge of progress: we should look back only in order to look ahead.

Time moves on, and we must move with it. Like the breathing of the gods, it is sometimes kind and gentle, sometimes cruel and severe—but it is forever on the move. We can never relive that moment just past, however dear it may have been to us. We can only recall it, and bathe our souls in its living likeness. It is with this in mind, then, that we present to you the following review of experiences of this college year. In its pages we have stopped the hands of Time for a brief instant in an effort to preserve for you those most endearing moments which, though vivid now, may grow dim with the passing years.

The President Speaks

This volume portrays the life of our campus in a difficult year. It has been a time of adjustment and planning. We have found a place for more students than we ever imagined was possible, and we have been planning additional buildings and facilities.

We believe this year of difficulties has been a year of progress. Buildings and endowments are measures of progress, but more significant are the expanding horizons and intellectual excitement in cultural and artistic opportunities and in the wide range of student interest. We have a greater understanding of student life in other countries, and a concern for our country's role in world affairs. We have listened to great artists and learned to appreciate new arts.

These pages will remind us of experiences in which we participated. For some of us it was the first time, while for others it meant the responsibility of leadership. In these activities we were learning to live and work with other people. This is the record of our progress.

Very sincerely yours,

CALVERT N. ELLIS

Whatever else this Alfarata may mean to you, of this I am certain: It will be during your lifetime a scrapbook of reminders of one of the best years of your life. It will be a reference book of people who were your classmates and friends; many of whom later will be leaders and distinguished servants of mankind. It will be one of your favorite chapters in the history of OUR college, a good little college made better by the people pictured herein. It will be the mirror of an extraordinary year when students were older than usual, more widely traveled than usual, more laden with responsibilities than usual, and in many ways wiser than usual. It will be a cherished diary of a year of personal growth . . . intellectually, spiritually, physically and socially.

As you turn the pages of this book from time to time I hope you will be stimulated to write to your friends, to visit again the scenes of your pleasant memories, to review the books which contributed to your understanding, and to recapture the optimism which characterized this year of your youth.

When you read these words may they remind you of your membership in the society of Juniatians—a group of special friends who shared in the problems and pleasures of your climb and who will ever receive with joy and pride news of your slightest accomplishments.

Very sincerely yours,

J. MELVIN RHODES

This past year, the history of Juniata College was very ably written by our President Emeritus C. C. Ellis. From 1947 on, you, the present students, as well as faculty administrators and trustees, should be making just as important history for the second volume. For instance, is it possible for us to make an outstanding contribution to a program of world peace and international understanding? Were we to get behind this movement one hundred percent, I believe we could well measure up to any past generation and their efforts toward challenging causes.

This Alfarata may not mean as much to many of you as other editions have meant because of your college education being interrupted by this last war. May that sort of loss in your program not have to be taken by your sons and daughters. It may depend upon the way you crusade for an international understanding.

Nevertheless, into the editions for a span of years has gone a record which you will cherish, we hope, as the years go by. If you had a vital part in the planning and execution of events, you will recall them with great clarity; but if you sat passively watching, they are probably of dim and doubtful value to you. So many of you said, as freshmen, "You get out of life what you put into it." Do you still feel the truth in that statement?

Life ahead for you is very challenging, and there will be fewer people interested in you to guide you. It is our hope, however, that we have sufficiently let you take over responsibility of your own actions here on College Hill so as to carry on without mob psychology influencing you to endorse anything short of your best.

We wish you Godspeed.

Very sincerely yours,
EDITH L. SPENCER

ATHLETICS

PRESENT

Sporting Spirit . . .

Theirs was the task of coaching the Indians through another successful football season.

Football at Juniata, revitalized and rebuilt in 1947, enjoyed the greatest year of renaissance in the history of College Hill. A new fighting spirit and the thrills that it provided made this an unforgettable year from the opening victory to the tremendous triumph in the season's surging climax.

Touching off this firey campaign was the surprise appointment of Bill Smaltz as new head coach. Smaltz, with his fine record as a superlative fullback at Penn State, took over with more of a reputation as a player than as a coach. But by November big Bill, the passing ace, had "arrived" as Head Coach Smaltz.

Thirteen lettermen were among the 53 that began work in early September. Names like Stever and Everhart had a familiar ring. But for the most part Smaltz's material was brand new. And names like Bonomi and Dzvonar meant nothing until a team had been moulded and sent into action.

The unveiling came on October 4 against Westminster. And as a fine Parents' Day crowd roared its enthusiasm the rejuvenated Indians burst from their wigwam to scalp the Titans 21–7.

Westminster scored first but never thereafter as the Warriors rose to take command. Juniata's two touchdown victory margin came on the strength of the power running of Charlie Litzinger, the bullseye passing of Mike Dzvonar and the coffin-corner punting of Don Everhart.

The very decisiveness of this opening triumph sent spirits soaring. And fortunately so, for the next three contests went the other way. Juniata's new muscles were still too tender on October 9 for rough and ready Alliance College. So in a night game at Erie the Indians were pinned 6–0 in this first game ever staged between the two schools. The Alliance strength was predominant but never quite enough to carry an attack into the end zone until the third quarter. And then the hosts scored only when a Juniata fumble gave them the ball 9 yards from the goal line.

The heartbreak of the season came on October 25 in the waning moments of the Susquehanna game at Selinsgrove. In this traditional battle the Indians never got rolling until they were trailing 13–0 late in the game. In the last quarter they scored quickly to make it 13–7, and soon had pounded 71 yards to a first down with only six yards to go to tie, at least, and maybe win it.

But a moment later a fumble bounced crazily away into the arms of a Crusader. And with it went the Juniata hopes, for Stagg's razzle-dazzle pupils went flying to a final touchdown to triumph 20–7.

On November 1 the Indians ran into a team of track stars at Alfred University who outran them for 60 minutes and won 26–13. The Saxons set up their win with spectacular newsreel runs of 56, 60, 66 and 75 yards. Juniata scored by capitalizing on a fumble on the Alfred five yard line, and again when Dzvonar picked up 32 yards in five successive runs and Litzinger shot a screen pass to Phil Chabody for a touchdown from 33 yards out.

Back home on November 8 the Indians found themselves in every respect as they romped over Ursinus 31–14. Neither team struck until the second quarter, first Ursinus on a series of running plays, and then Juniata when Sam Woffindin fired a pass to Dick Stever who scampered 38 yards for the score. The Indians piled up 25 more points in the second half and sent everyone home happy over their triumph even though still upset over a bleacher collapse which miraculously injured only 11 persons.

Caught without their hipboots in a muddy Reading lagoon, the Warriors were capsized and sunk by Albright, 26–7. Firing broadsides quick and often the Roaring Lions had victory assured before Juniata could even man her pumps. Although the Indians were handicapped by the mire which forced them to stick largely to a surface attack, their lone score was set up by a 55 yard screen pass from Wasco Berzansky to John Henderson.

With but two wins in six games the Juniatians were justly cast as underdogs for their finale with the allegedly powerful Lebanon Valley. These Dutchmen had never lost a game to Juniata in 16 years, and they had been beaten only once thus far in '47. But none of this mattered, for the 11 underdogs who lined up for Juniata on that misty day of glory achieved one of the most stunning triumphs in this school's athletic history. Lebanon Valley was completely overpowered and utterly defeated, 20 to 6—not by the strength of weight or of numbers, but by the irrisistible force of a mighty will to win.

Varsity tackles Bob Jones and Bryan Gray were out with broken legs suffered against Albright. But their spirit lived in the men who took their places and in every man who wore the Blue and Gold that day from Captain Dick Stever on down—Stever who broke his hand in the first quarter and never left the game.

This was the zenith of a grand season, one which saw the Indians win all of their three home games magnificently. It was a fitting way to wind up a quarter of a century of football at Juniata College.

J Club

The "J" Club endeavors to promote good sportsmanship in athletics and also to encourage a feeling of fellowship and friendliness among its members and other students. In line with the post-war return to athletics on a large scale, the club, whose organization dates back to 1926, also expanded its size and activity. Pre-war letter-winners and those receiving awards in the past few years combined to make the club one of the largest in its history.

All letter-winning athletes and managers in all sports are eligible to participate in the organization's activities upon payment of annual dues. With the initiation of golf as an organized intercollegiate sport, the letter-winners from the links were welcomed into the club.

At the closing meeting in the Spring of 1947 Richard Stever, award-winner in football and basketball, as well as being selected to the football captaincy, was chosen President. Don Everhart was made Vice-President, and Samuel Woffindin was elected to the post of Secretary-Treasurer.

The "J" Club, as in former years, produced the football programs for the three home games under the traditional name, "Indian." Jesse Garber acted as editor of this publication.

November 8, following the victory over Ursinus, the "J" Club sponsored a new and different Homecoming event. In former years there was the familiar banquet, followed by an off-campus dance. This year, however, a dance was held in the college gymnasium. Featured at this occasion were outstanding decorative effects, with attention centered on a large golden "J" on stage, and a student band. Miss Homecoming was the guest of honor for the evening. Chairman for the program was Jesse Garber, with William Germann having charge of the decorations.

Kat Klub

Providing leadership in cheers and songs at all home athletic contests and pep rallies comprises the major task of the Kat Klub. This year the organization was kept busy keeping in stride with the expanded athletic program at Juniata and furnishing spiritual impetus to the teams and students.

Although the nucleus of cheerleaders was formed from last year's squad, the Kat Klub decided to bolster its numbers during the football season. Final try-outs were held on November 12, and at the next pep session Betsy Wright, Delores Shaffer and Pat Beale donned the familiar "J'd" white sweater and blue skirt to lead the Indians in cheers.

Under the capable direction of Connie Loizeaux and Mel Fleishman, co-captains of the cheerleaders, the club did an excellent job in organizing pep rallies in the Old Chapel and "send-offs" outside the gym. War dances through the town and bonfires at the practice field usually preceded home football games.

The Concession of selling candy at athletic contests not only provided spectators with an added service, but also gave the Kat Klub an opportunity to earn money. At the end of the basketball season the members held a banquet at the Penn Koffee Shoppe. New officers for the coming year were chosen at this time.

Kat Klub members this year were: Connie Loizeaux, Mel Fleishman, Katherine Long, Vivian Souder, Mary Faye Hannum, Gerry High, Betsy Wright, Dolores Shaffer and Pat Beale.

1st row: Kitty Long, Gerry High, Connie Loizeaux, Mel Fleishman, Mary Faye Hannum, Vivian Souder.
2nd row: Dolores Shaffer, Betsy Wright, Pat Beale.

This year's court edition of Warriors, studded with five letter winners and a glittering array of new talent, possessed all the earmarks of a coach's dream as they proceeded to display their cage know-how in pre-season drills. Speed and ability, accentuated by more added inches than ever graced a Blue and Gold team before, were the factors which Coach Mike Snider was relying upon to carry his charges through a stiff 21-game schedule with banners.

Among the line-up of sharpshooters who appeared at the opening drills were Johnny Stayer, Bob Norris, Gerry Rupert, George Smith and Andy Christos, all wearers of the chenille "J"; augmented by Holmes Ulsh, Bud Kreider, Stan Welch, Ray Korody, Lloyd Newlin, Mike Dzvonar, Andy Endrusick and Jim Fawber, donning Indian togs for the first time. Jim Ritchey and Bob Jamison turned out later in the season.

The season's lid-lifter was provided on December third when the Indians, on a two-game trip through Virginia, paid a visit to Danny Geiser, former star athlete at Juniata and at the present time court mentor of the Bridgewater Eagles, which included a basketball victory for the Indians, 50 to 43. Freshman Ray Korody sparked the attack with a second half barrage of fourteen points. On the next evening the team collided with a firehouse brand of basketball players in the Devildogs of the Quantico Marines at the Post Gym. The visitors were annihilated, 52 to 41.

The first home game was staged on December 10 against the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley. After the shriek of the whistle which put a end to the first half, the Indian supporters thought that at last the monotonous drubbings on the court which seemed an essential part of the Juniata teams of yesteryear would stop. The hosts led by 24 to 22. But then the "Big Jawn" began to roll as Becker, Marquette, and Di-Johnson started slicing the mesh with twin counters. At the end of the contest, Becker had eighteen points, and the Dutchmen had the game, 48 to 41.

The tribe lost their third game on December 13 before some 2,000 unenthusiastic Bucknell rooters at the Davis Gym in Lewisburg, by the score of 66 to 35. Still the itinerants in their next court test, the Warriors were drubbed mercilessly in spite of Stayer's seventeen markers by the Red Devils of Dickinson College. Trailing 32 to 14 at the half, the Snider charges fought desperately to overcome the margin, but the Dickinson onslaught prevailed and the homesters won 65 to 46 despite a fourth stanza boost for the Indians.

After the Christmas holidays, the Indians, with one win against four losses, played two tilts on Huntingdon High School planks. In the first against Hartwick College, Rupert and Kreider turned in sterling performances by blasting the hoops for 19 and 16 points respectively. Kreider guarded Hartwick ace Zeke Zelie like a hawk and held the star to eleven points as his mates annexed the game 66 to 56. Against Moravian College, Mike Snider's aggregation met a fast-breaking outfit which they found impossible to throttle, and the black-clad quintet walked off the floor with a 69 to 41 decision.

At New Wilmington on January 12, Juniata met the outfit which has been its nemesis for years. Westminster goes in for basketball in a big way, scheduling such hot rocks as Utah University and Akron. The Towering Titans, again under the capable tutelage of Grover Washabaugh, played the Indian five as though they were scrimmaging their J.V.'s, and the final score was 90 to 51.

The Snidermen played their ninth game of the campaign against the Crusaders of Susquehanna University. In this fracas, Juniata chalked up her second win by smothering the Selinsgrove lads 66 to 53. Bud Kreider paced the attack with 16 points, and Captain Lefty Norris, operating from the pivot zone, chalked up a total of thirteen to place second.

After splitting a two-game series with the Bees of the University of Baltimore, the Indians again faced the Towering Titans. This time, on foreign boards, the high-scoring Westminster quintet bowled over Juniata to the tune of 74 to 50. Holmes Ulsh had a good night and racked up 17 points.

We had heard pretty much about a gentleman from Elizabethtown College whose nomenclature, Mr. Frank Keath, had been written in sports pages as the highest scorer in the State. We were soon to find out more, for the schedule read: February 7—Elizabethtown; February 11—Lebanon Valley, and February 8—Elizabethtown. Walking morosely back to campus from the gym on the night of the eighteenth, we knew too much about Frankie, who had collected 53 points against Juniata, and paced the Phantoms to a brace of victories over the hapless Warriors, 95 to 71 and 76 to 74. And in-between, the Becker, Marquette and DiJohnson clan had provided a bitter delicacy by shellacking the Indians for a second time, 90 to 61.

Appearing next on the agenda to vanquish the Blue and Gold was St. Francis, and they did a good job by winning the test over the Snidermen of Juniata College by the score of 62 to 48. At Lancaster, on February 26, the Indians met Franklin and Marshall in a contest that was won by an extra-stanza splurge of nine points by the Diplomats. The final score read 59 to 50. Two days after the F. and M. tilt the Warriors encountered Bridgewater again in Huntingdon. This time Geiser's cagers pasted a loss on the Blue and Gold by checking a last quarter threat and winning 59 to 50.

On March 1, with only two contests left on the dragging 21-game calendar, the team encountered Susquehanna away to complete that series. It looked as though the Indians would break their losing streak, but in the last quarter Susquehanna poured it on, scoring thirteen points to three for their visitors to win the tilt 56 to 52. In the finale, Eddie Anlian, played for less than two quarters, but scored 25 points for the Albright Lions. Juniata dropped this tilt, their seventeenth, by a score of 68 to 57.

Four wins out of a twenty-one game schedule means a very poor basketball season. Fate took a few nasty swings at the starting five this year and she sent three regulars to the bench: Andy Christos, who was unable to return to College due to sickness; Bob Norris, who became ineligible after the beginning of the second semester, and Bob Jamison, who was hit with appendicitis. One bright spot in the outlook is that every member of the squad will be back next year to don the Blue and Gold again.

Final statistics of the season show that Holmes Ulsh, a scrappy Freshman forward, led the scoring department with a total of 226 points. Also, the varsity scored a total of 1123 points throughout the season, or an average of 53.5 per game against almost 65 for the opposition.

A combination of a new coach and returning veteran performers in Juniata's first full post-war baseball season produced a fine record of 10 wins and 4 losses in 1947. This better than average showing stands well up on the list of the usual outstanding diamond performances of the Indian baseballers, and salvages something from a rather disappointing year for Juniata's inter-collegiate sports program.

Taking up the reins as head coach, succeeding Dr. Edgar Kiracofe, who handled the teams during the war years, was William R. (Bill) Smaltz, now head coach for the Indian football team, and ex-Penn State passing star. Without the benefit of too much previous baseball experience, Smaltz moulded a winning combination from pre-war Juniata diamond stars, 1946 players and several outstanding newcomers. Ray Clapperton, a senior, captained the Blue and Gold representatives from his shortstop position.

Receiving standout pitching contributions from veteran Dick Frick, senior from Sellersville, and Tom Kyper, Huntingdon freshman, the Indians collaborated with clutch hitting and steady, if not brilliant, fielding. The infield of Harry Maclay, Clapperton, Dick Stever and "Fuzz" Eisenhart cut short many potential enemy rallies. The outfield of Bob Holsinger, Jack Lang and "Squeeze" Long left little to be desired in the outer gardens. Don Everhart, veteran of many diamond battles, handled the slants of the hurlers in big league fashion. Backing up the starting nine were Paul Peoples, Bernie Kyper, Jim Reifer, Homoleck Scarcia and John Henderson.

The Indians embarked on an ambitious 19-game schedule, the largest in their history. The team had to contend with inclement weather in pre-season drills and later had a total of five contests rained out, including both battles with Susquehanna's Crusaders.

Last year saw the introduction of a "Southern tour" for the baseballers in which three tilts were scheduled to serve as warmups under better climatic conditions than would be possible at home. However, rain necessitated the postponement of the game with Randolph-Macon and the Quantico Marines. The Indians did get in a game with the Bridgewater Eagles, one of J. C.'s sister colleges, which they dropped by a 9–7 score, although playing without the services of Capt. Clapperton, who was ill. However, valuable experience was gained and it showed that the team could cause future opponents plenty of trouble.

The Blue and Gold ran into more tough luck at Lebanon Valley in their second game when five unearned runs gave the Flying Dutchmen a 5–3 decision. "Squire" Holsinger started his only game of the year, but weak support caused his downfall. Capt. Clapperton walloped a home run in the losing cause.

The first home game was a decided success when the Indians came from behind with a ninth inning rally to edge out the Elizabethtown Blue Jays by a 7–6 count. Trailing at one time, 6–1, and 6–4 going into the last half of the ninth the Warriors pulled the game out by virtue of a long double by Don Everhart, which drove in the tying and winning runs. Tom Kyper, pitching in relief of Dick Frick, emerged the winning hurler.

Continuing their winning ways the Blue and Gold notched their second win of the year by walloping the Red Devils of Dickinson, 12–5, on the home field. Tom Kyper went all the way on the mound for his second win, holding the invaders to nine hits and two earned runs. "Squire" Holsinger, with four hits and 4 RBIs, and Jack Lang, contributing three singles, led the Juniata attack on two Dickinson hurlers.

In one of the high spots of the season, Juniata's Indians defeated the Panthers from the University of Pittsburgh by an 8–2 score. After winning three straight contests the Smoky City boys were held to four scattered hits by Dick Frick, slim righthander, who turned in his first victory of the year. Holsinger again led the hitters with 2 for 4.

Sailing into the eighth inning with a 3–1 lead, the Warriors were ambushed by an Albright rally which produced 13 big tallies and handed the Lions a 14–3 victory, played at Reading. Tom Kyper had pitched good ball until that disastrous inning, but 3 hits and 2 errors proved his downfall before he obtained relief. The loss was the third for the Indians and snapped their three-game winning streak.

Bouncing back from their defeat at Albright the J. C. baseballers edged out Lebanon Valley on the home field by an 8–7 score and avenged an earlier season defeat. Dick Frick turned in his second straight triumph, although hit freely. Clapperton and Lang each had three hits for the winners, while "Fuzz" Eisenhart slammed a home run with one on.

Juniata won its fifth victory by downing Bucknell University at Lewisburg, 6–3. Tom Kyper won his third game, aided by some fancy fielding and clutch hitting. A 4-run outburst in the fourth inning proved to be enough for the win. Everhart, Stever and Clapperton each had 2 singles.

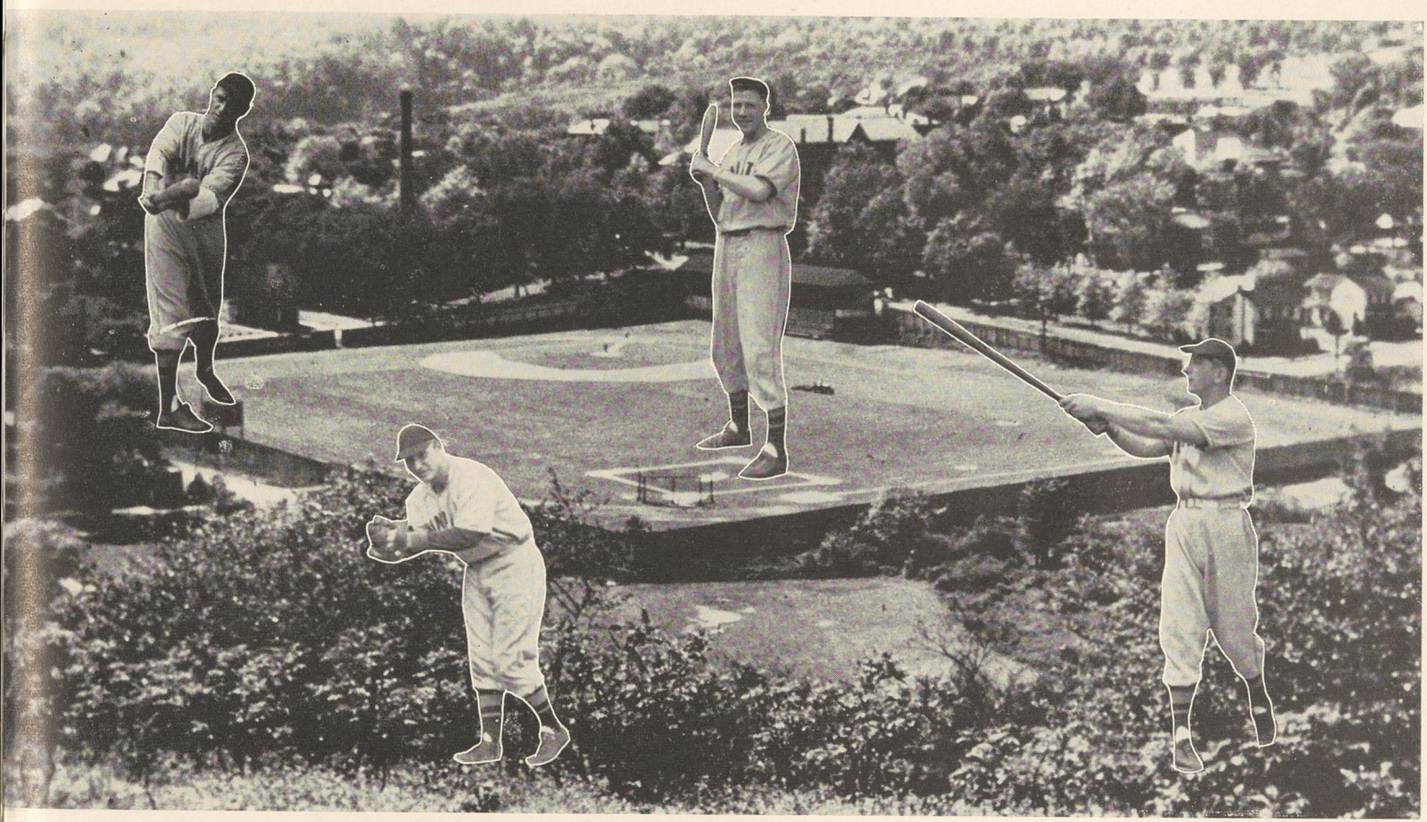
In one of the tightest games of the season, the Indians edged out Dickinson by a 3–2 score at Carlisle as Dick Frick and Ed Carl hooked up in a fine pitching duel. Juniata made good use of its 3 hits, bunching two of them with 2 walks, for 3 runs in the 7th inning. The important RBIs were supplied by Holsinger and Maclay. The Indians played errorless ball behind Frick, who gave a masterful performance.

Notching their fourth straight win and third straight on enemy fields, the Blue and Gold stopped Elizabethtown, 7–2. Tom Kyper pitched a seven-hitter and whiffed 9 batters, his season's high. Fourteen hits rocketed off the Juniata bats against two E'town pitchers with every man in the lineup getting at least one hit.

The Warriors dropped their first and only game of the season at home against the Bucknell Bisons, 5–4, as four errors by J. C. in the eighth and ninth innings enabled the visitors to come from behind and wipe out a 4–1 Juniata lead. Dick Frick was again the victim of poor fielding by his mates. Ray Clapperton led the losing cause with 3 solid hits.

May Day saw the Indians get back on the right track, when on a heavy field and under dark skies, Bridgewater was defeated, 8–1. A six-run blast in the fourth inning, featured by Jack Lang's triple with the sacks loaded, sewed up the decision. Going the route, Tom Kyper hurled an 8-hitter, as Lang, Stever, Maclay and Kyper himself collected two hits apiece.

Ursinus was the next opponent for the Blue and Gold and the Bears from Collegeville were turned back, 8–3, with Tom Kyper again on the mound, turning in his sixth victory. The winners jumped to an early lead, as they did in most of their games, and were never headed. "Squire" Holsinger continued his sensational slugging with three singles.



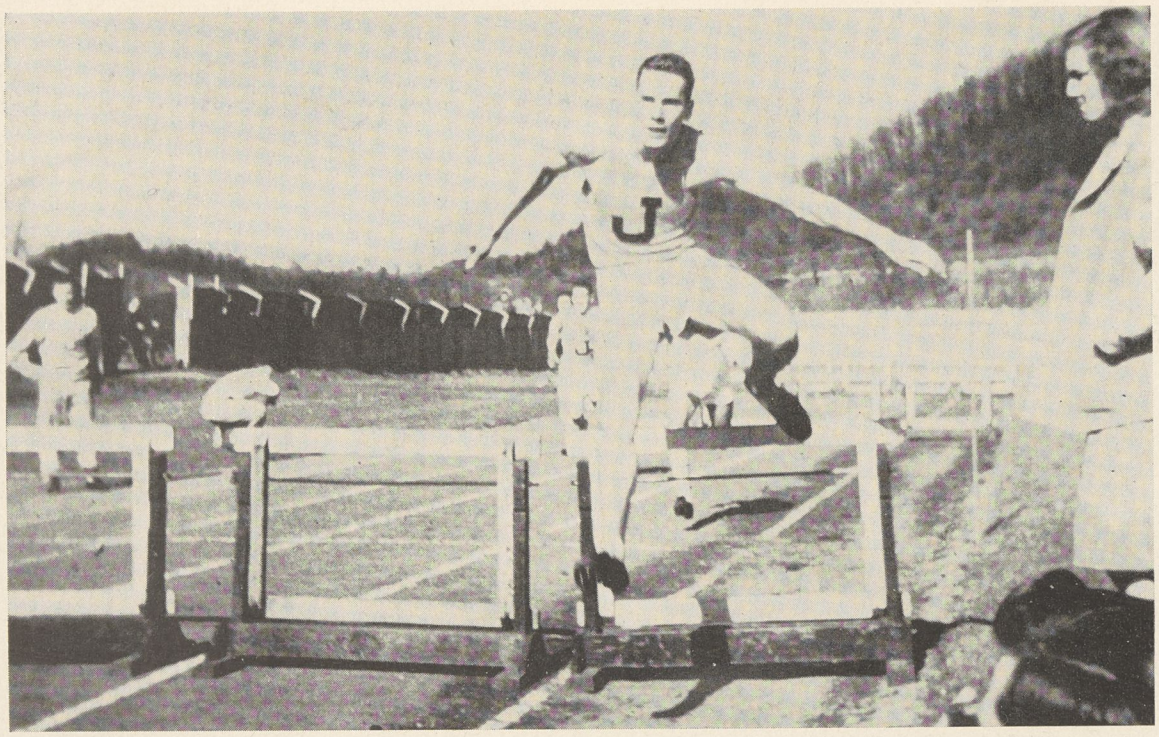
Under sunny skies the 1947 campaign was brought to an end with a 6–2 victory over St. Francis of Loretto, before a Graduation weekend crowd on College Field. Dick Frick, stellar senior hurler, turned in his usual A-1 job, holding the losers to five hits and fanning eight men. Meanwhile, a 10-hit attack, with the middle half of the batting order, Clapperton, Everhart, Holsinger and Eisenhart collecting two singles apiece, turned the tide.

From every angle Juniata's 1947 baseball campaigners enjoyed a successful season. Only one game was dropped on the home grounds, and both the May Day and Graduation Week games were captured in handy fashion. With the exception of the Albright Lions, all of the four teams which defeated Juniata were decisioned in the return games, always a credit to any team and coach. J. C. also made fine showings against teams of larger institutions, the shining example being the University of Pittsburgh. Several football and basketball defeats were also avenged by the baseballers. The spirit on the team was high and the players were not hampered by any serious injuries at any stage of the season.

The final statistics showed a team batting record of .258. Bob "Squire" Holsinger, Martinsburg sophomore and a returning veteran from the 1943 baseball wars, led the stickers with a robust .382 average, as well as leading his teammates in number of hits, total bases, doubles and triples. Captain Ray Clapperton, senior from McKees Rocks and also a veteran from the '42 and '46 seasons, followed with .327 and led in runs scored and stolen bases, as well as being a bulwark on the defense at his short-stop slot. Don Everhart, hardworking back stop, led in the key RBI department with a total of 14.

Dick Frick, senior from Sellersville, and a performer in '41, '43 and '46, completed the season with a 4–2 record, while Tom Kyper, the Huntingdon redhead compiled a 6–1 showing. Holsinger lost the other contest in the only game he pitched. Kyper led in strikeouts with a total of 44 for 61⅔ innings pitched.

The Indians are looking forward to another successful campaign this year, under the co-captaincy of Don Everhart and Jack Lang. Graduation has taken only three men, Capt. Ray Clapperton, "Fuzz" Eisenhart and Dick Frick, leaving the shortstop and first base posts, and a pitching assignment open, but their absence will be keenly felt in this year's diamond battles. However, several promising freshmen and transfer students give indication that they will fill the gap, and together with the added experience gained by the other members of last year's starting nine, Juniata's baseball fortunes should again reach a high peak.



VARSITY

Molding a team around four lettermen from the previous season, Coach P. M. Snider achieved a fair degree of success with the 1947 thin clads. Returning were Jess Garber in the weights, Ken Grote in the pole vault, middle distances and jumps, Clyde Mellinger in the sprints, and Jack Walters in the hurdles and jumps. Newcomers to the squad who made good were Joe Beyer, two miler, Ed Crist, sprinter, Don Dunkle, high jump, and John Harris, miler, as well as Tom Calhoun, Karl Evans, Lloyd Keafer, Bob Malone, Jack Poole, James Rutledge, and Ray Seckinger.

DICKINSON 65¾--JUNIATA 59¼

Kendall Grote took individual scoring honors as the Indians lost the opening meet to Dickinson College. Although the Indians earned eight of the 14 first places, the Red Devils gained points by cleaning up on seconds and thirds. Grote earned two firsts, a tie for first, and a second to lead the field with 16 points. Other high scorers of the meet were Walters 8, Harris 8, Seckinger 6, Beyer and Garber 5, Dunkle and Rutledge 4.

GETTYSBURG 73½—BUCKNELL 57—JUNIATA 23½

Two miler Joe Beyer provided the lone first place for the Indians, as the combined forces of Gettysburg College and Bucknell University shut them out the following week. Grote again led the Juniata scoring parade with 7, on a second, a third, and a share in a four way tie for second. John Harris earned 6 with seconds in both the mile and half mile.

JUNIATA 73—ALBRIGHT 53

With Albright College providing the competition, the Indians won their final meet, as Grote again led the scoring with 14. Ed Crist followed close with 10, as he took firsts in both the 100 and 220 yd. dashes. Other high scorers for the meet were Walters 8, Malone 7, and Beyer, Dunkle, and Garber, with 5 each.

LETTER WINNERS

Seven men earned their varsity "J" last season. Three of these, Garber, Grote, and Walters, were previous letter winners in track, while Beyer, Crist, Dunkle, and Harris were newcomers to the squad. The season scoring of these men was as follows:

Grote	37	Crist	11
Harris	24	Garber	11
Walters	18	Dunkle	9
Beyer	15

INTRA M

Realizing that intercollegiate athletics is for the few rather than the many, the Senate and the W. A. A. supervise a program of intramural competition the year round. Responsible for the organization and supervision of this program are the Senate Chairman of Athletics, Paul Kleffel, and the W. A. A. faculty advisor, Betty Smaltz.

Early in the Spring of 1947 a softball league was organized from the various campus groups. In all, there were eight teams to vie for top honors. Games were played in the evening after the early meal, and many an evening's load of studies was lightened through beginning at the ball park.

In the Fall, twelve six-man football teams comprised the nucleus of intramural activity, as interest turned to Fall sports. Although inclement weather and Homecoming activities prevented a playoff series, the BULLETS were leading the league with an undefeated record at the end of the season. Members of the squad were Robert Anderson, Stanley Welch, Jay McCardell, Robert Norris, Andrew Christos, Anthony Endrusick, James McClain, Jack Poole, Jerry Rupert, Pete Dell, and Frank Bird. An attempt to arouse interest in soccer resulted in inter-class competition between the Freshmen and the upperclassmen. Girls, meanwhile, had embarked on a program of hockey.

Basketball, too, came in for its share of attention with boys and girls alike. In the boys' league the PAPER PICKERS took the undefeated STEALERS in a playoff surprise to cop the championship, after themselves losing two earlier in the year. Only under the system of Shaughnessey Playoffs adopted this year could such a freak outcome have resulted. The highlight of the basketball year, however, was the boy-girl game which put a fitting close to the best attended of all intramural activities.

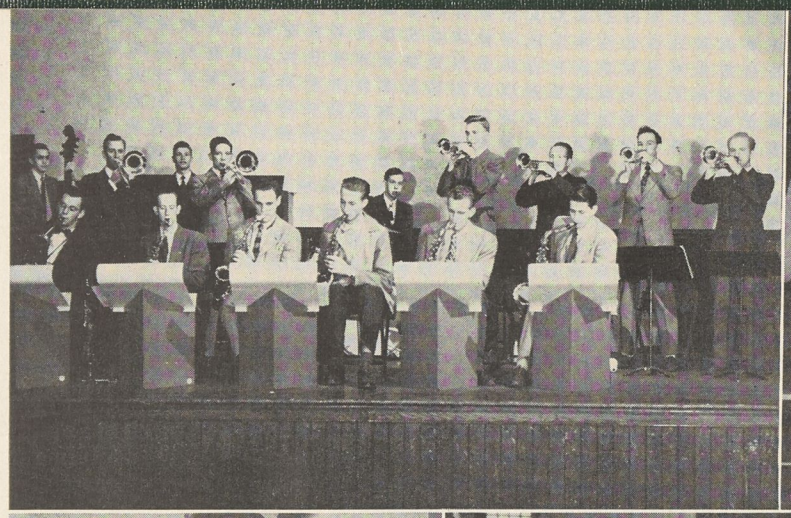
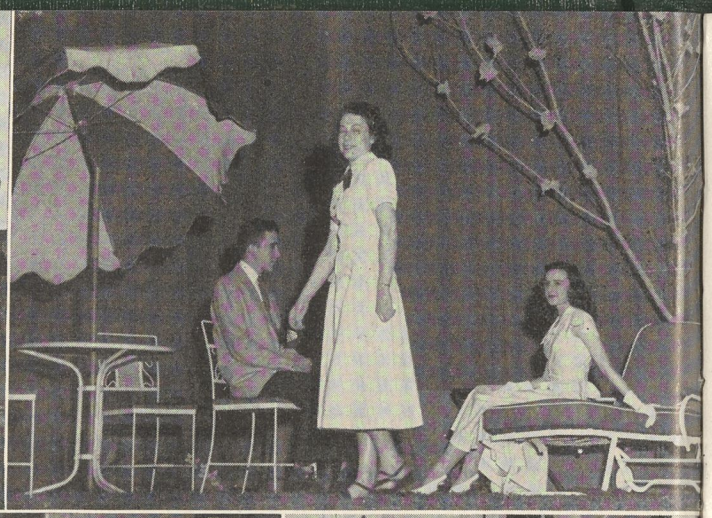
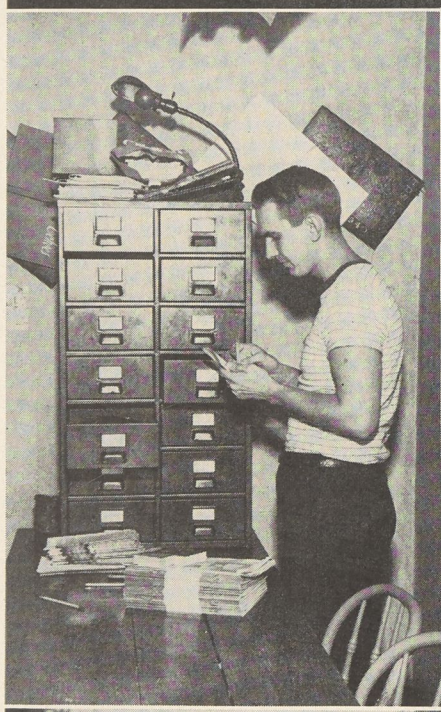
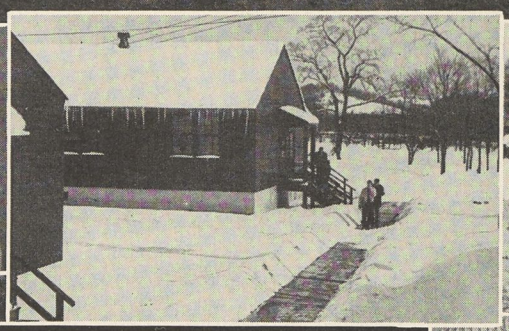
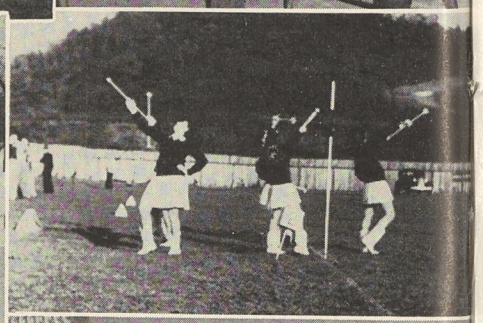
In addition to these team sports, a ping-pong tournament was conducted in late Winter, and a tennis tournament in the Spring.

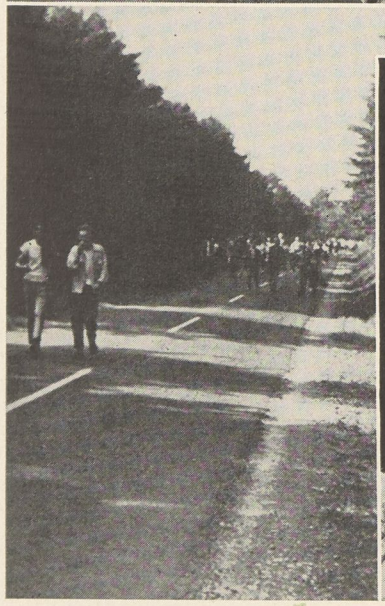


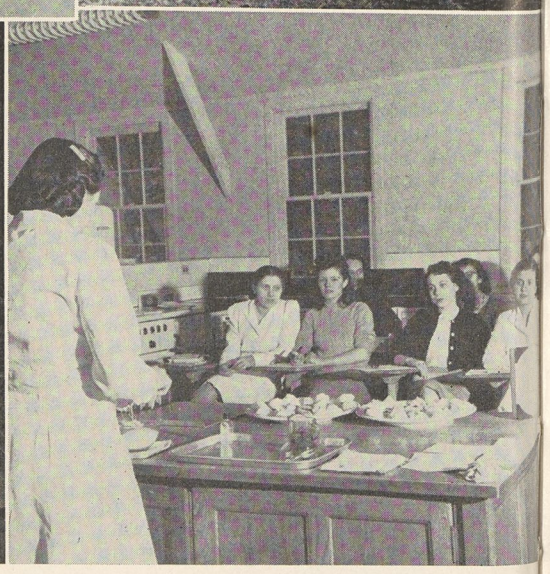












ORGANIZATIONS

The Student Senate

The Juniata College Senate, in its thirteenth year as an active governing body at Juniata, approached this year the real fulfillment of its purpose, that of acting as intermediary between the student body and the administration. The Senate this year was particularly sensitive and responsive to student opinion. It presented the resolutions of the Camp Kanesatake Leadership Conference Group to the administration, and secured action on them. It suggested numerous physical improvements on the campus, such as the walk from the Cloisters to the Lodge, and secured construction of them.

The Religious Activities Committee, with Edwin Crist as chairman, fullfilled the duties assigned to it in an outstanding manner. The Committee sponsored the annual Spiritual Emphasis Week, and obtained for discussion leader Dr. Mark Depp, a Methodist minister from Winston-Salem, North Carolina. The topics for discussion during the week were the object of much student interest and attention, inasmuch as they dealt with such timely topics as, "The Place of the Church in the Modern Age," "The Relation of Science and Religion," "Is Religion Good Psychology?" and "Is Religion the Answer to Peace of Mind?" During the week, morning devotions were held with student leaders at 7:30 in the Stone Church. For the first time in recent years Spiritual Emphasis Week was marked by campus-wide participation.

The Religious Activities Committee also turned its attention to the problem of unification of campus religious organizations under one central committee, that it might be a force for stronger action. At the conclusion of the year this project was still under consideration.

The Social Committee, under the chairmanship of William Fegan succeeded in its attempt to present a diversified social life to the college. Dances and parties on Saturday nights at the gym became fixtures on the campus, and much attention was given to decoration. In particular, the Sadie Hawkins Day activities were colorful and well attended. Other popular occasions were the Veterans Dance and banquet, the Lambda Gamma party, a series of movies and the various mixers. The Social Committee enjoyed the support of the great majority of the student body at its activities.

The Leadership Conference at Camp Kanesatake, planned by the Senate Vice-President, Harry Maclay, accomplished a great deal in clarifying student opinion on vital college issues. A series of resolutions was drawn up for presentation to the administration, among which were those affecting the admission of a representative of married veterans to the Senate, the keeping of automobiles on the campus, compulsory Church attendance, and the addition of the course in journalism to the college curriculum. Each of these petitions was granted by the administration. The Senate also undertook the job of coordinating the college calendar, and of harmonizing student and administrative functions.

Freshman Committee

The Freshman Committee, as set up by the Senate, has as its main purpose the orientation of Freshmen men and women to the Juniata way of life. The committee consists of a chairman, who represents the committee on the Senate, and fourteen additional members who are nominated by the Senate and elected by the members of the Junior and Senior classes; eight from the Senior class and six from the Junior.

This year's committee was very ably headed by Francis—better known to us as Bud—Lehner. He and his committee were hard at work long before the class of '51 set foot on the campus. Freshmen rules and regulations had to be revised very early in the game to make possible the publication of the Scout, a publication for Freshmen which comes out before the beginning of the school year.

At Leadership Conference the committee continued its work, making plans for Freshmen Week and the weeks following. When school opened, dinks and name cards were made available at an early date so that Freshmen initiation could embark according to its customary tradition. Freshmen Week provided that long awaited opportunity for the committee to get a glimpse at its subjects, and for Freshmen to view for the first time their domineering oppressors. At this time, rules and regulations as stated in the Scout were put into effect and martial law prevailed. During the next weeks, the traditional yellow and green headgear and white name cards served as the means of introduction for upperclass students.

The class of '51, after becoming better acquainted with college life, soon fell into the swing of press club duty, flag duty, and desk duty. Its members soon realized, too, that the front steps of Founders and the Diagonal were, for the present, to be merely looked upon—not trodden upon. "Freshmen shall not precede upperclassmen" seemed to be a more difficult rule to remember—especially when one was hungry or late for class. Tuesday evenings found the Freshmen Committee pondering over the many decisions which had to be made in the administration of justice. . . . And so continued the life of the persecuted Freshmen until Move-Up Day, when the class of '51 joined the ranks of the upperclassmen. To quote chairman Lehner off the record, "The committee closed its eyes to a few things, but on the whole, we had a good year and a good Freshman class."

Men's House Committee

Charged with the responsibility of maintaining favorable living conditions within the men's dormitories, the Men's House Committee this year functioned under the leadership of Samuel Woffindin, Senate Chairman of Men's House. He was assisted by a series of vice-chairmen, which included Paul Kleffel, Clyde Mellinger, John Keener, and John Kepford, and an organization of hall presidents in the Lodge and Cloisters.

With the separation of upper class and freshmen men, as the result of Juniata's record enrollment, the Men's House this year was not beset by the usual problems that occur near initiation. Dormitory life was characterized by quietness and willing cooperation. Almost gone were the traditional water battles and noisy "horseplay" of other years.

A new problem was posed for the men's house organization with the large group of freshmen living in private homes throughout Huntingdon. The difficult task of integrating these men into the college residence community was assigned John Kepford, Vice-Chairman in charge of day students. Should this present practice be continued, the nature of this assignment will become more difficult.

The Men's House Committee has as its particular responsibility that of preventing "any house conditions which cause undesirable living conditions or infringe upon the rights of others." In addition, the Committee must coordinate the work of the Custodian with that of the resident men. Conditions of sanitation and cleanliness within the dormitories this year were exceptionally good.

An extremely satisfactory relationship was worked out this year between the administration and the resident men with regard to conditions within the dorm. Protest or recommendation from the House Committee to the administration usually brought prompt action, and affairs of maintenance ran smoothly.

During "Open House" the Committee assumed the responsibility of insuring the proper appearance of residence halls and individual rooms. Guides were chosen to escort visitors through Cloisters and the Lodge.

With a program of "face lifting" scheduled for the dormitories next year, the job of chairman of Men's House should become more simplified. With its tradition of rich residence hall fellowship, the importance of the Men's House Committee in campus life cannot be overemphasized.

Women's House Committee

The women's house committee, advised by the dean of women and working in conjunction with the president of the college, has this year remained true to the purpose for which it was organized—that of creating and maintaining, in the women's dormitories, the best possible study and living conditions.

The nineteen hundred forty-seven–forty-eight house committee was headed by Edwarda Skelly, who was elected by the student body to act as chairman of this committee and to represent on the Senate the women resident and day students. She was ably assisted by twenty-three representatives who served as presidents and assistant presidents on the various halls of Founders, Brumbaugh, Oneida, and Geiger House.

At the committee's initial fall meeting, Melva Fleishman was elected vice chairman—to serve as acting chairman of "The House" during the time in which the chairman would be off campus doing student teaching. Kitty Long was elected to the position of secretary-treasurer and Charlotte Beam was selected to act as fire chief.

The duties of the women's house committee began with the disembarkation of the class of "fifty-one" upon the shores of Juniata College. During Freshmen Week, the house committee briefed its new residents on dormitory rules and regulations. The house committee, in traditional style, aided in rekindling the warmth of friendships within its walls by presenting the annual fire lighting ceremony in the social rooms of Brumbaugh Hall. The committee opened its doors to all on Parents' Day, at which time awards were made to those within the dorms whose rooms were deserving of special merit. Again at "Homecoming" it acted as hostess to our many returning friends and graduates.

Christmas time found the "Christmas Spirit" evolving from the pine bedecked dining hall, the glowing wreath on Founders porch, and the "Yule Log" in the social room's fire-stall, blazing beneath a trio of singing children—all such efforts being directed by the house committee.

This group planned and served afternoon teas in the social rooms as a means of stimulating relaxation and fellowship during semester examinations. Another job undertaken and accomplished by the house committee was that of improving the decorative appearance of the college infirmary through the making of new window draperies.

Ways and means of improving the general etiquette in the dining hall and on campus were emphasized by this committee after it had made a study of the existing conditions.

1st row: Mary Bemus, Miriam Dickey, Elma Stine, Corena Sollenberger, Melva Fleishman.
2nd row: Virginia Weaver, Betsy Leach, Mary Ono, Kitty Long.
3rd row: Rhoda McCord, Marge Muller, Doris Quinnell.
4th row: Ruth Steele, Edwarda Skelly, Miss Spencer.

The Juniatian

With a completely new face, the Juniatian this year accordingly adopted an almost completely new division of personnel as well. An assistant sports editor, a staff secretary, and three contributing editors were also added to the staff. In keeping with the new staff was the different appearance of the publication itself; an attempt being made to vary the layout each week.

Shortage of space required the elimination of a number of less newsy reports. Because the increased cost of publishing the Juniatian had to be met by increased ad sales, the ads took up more space, and as a result, the qualifications for copy were automatically raised.

A number of special features were also added this year. One that was a definite force in arousing student interest was the feature, Letters to the Editor. In this column, signed letters, airing student opinions on many phases of campus life, were printed. Campus Comments was another new feature column. Music, movies, records, and politics all held their place on the feature page, and Tommy, too, came in for his share of the changes.

Another innovation that caused quite a bit of favorable comment was the publication of the special six-page editions that were put out on Homecoming, Christmas, Exam week, and May Day.

The Juniatian also came forward as the sponsor of several events that were new on campus. The first of these was the election of the first annual Miss Homecoming. It was hoped that this should become a yearly Juniatian-sponsored affair. The dorm decorating contest of Homecoming Day was another such activity.

The Juniatian, too, gave its wholehearted support to all campus welfare and relief drives, most notable of which was the Juniata World Service Fund which this year exceeded its goal. Publicity afforded these ventures through the medium of the Juniatian was a definite asset to their success.

The Alfarata

Production of this, the latest in a long chain of Alfaratas covering more than a third of a century, has been marked by difficulties as severe as those that any Alfarata staff has had to overcome. In addition to the usual confusion over budget and photography scheduling, the editors this year had to contend with rising costs of printing, engraving and paper. In spite of this, the Alfarata for 1947–1948 took shape early as a truly representative survey of campus life in this first year of post-war student normalcy.

The Editor, Harry Maclay, of Belleville, began making his rough drafts of the book early in June of last year, and had his photographic work completed in record time for Juniata,—by October. He was assisted in his task by Robert Malone and James Gittings, who served as assistant editors on the staff. Final preparation and layout of this Alfarata was delayed until late in the Spring, that it might present as much of student life in these past two semesters as possible.

This book could not have been produced were it not for the aid given by those students from every division of campus life who gave freely of their time to write up the material presented here. The work of Harry Ball and the photography club was particularly efficient and helpful. The Business Staff, headed by John Kepford as Business Manager, canvassed Huntingdon and vicinity for the advertisements that make this Alfarata possible.

The creation of this Alfarata was fun. Even in the hurry and concern over meeting time schedules, and the strain of last minute "hitches" in production, the conviction grew in the entire staff that our part in this book would only serve to make it of more value to us, and that this pictorial record of a year at Juniata was reward in plenty for the time and effort spent in its preparation.

Out of our work together there developed a sense of cohesiveness on the part of the staff. We became not so much a group of people working together, as a club preparing a project for exhibition. In such a spirit was this Alfarata completed, and in such a spirit do we watch as you, the students for whom it was intended, scan its pages.

The Alfarata for this year takes its place beside the long chain of such books which have marked the development of the College in the hope that it will mark a time when Juniata achieved a new momentum in its never-ending journey toward a better kind of education, in a better kind of land.

Minor Publications

SCOUT

Meeting the freshman before he comes to Juniata is the SCOUT, a handbook designed to acquaint the student with the ways of college life and the problems likely to be encountered in this life. Published under the auspices of the Juniata College Student Association, the SCOUT is made available to all incoming freshmen and new students, as well as those upperclassmen desiring it.

Containing everything of interest to a college freshman, the SCOUT informs the newcomer of freshman regulations, tells him all about the student government machinery, and presents a miniature of extra-curricular activities, showing their place in college life.

Editing the SCOUT this year was Doris Eshbach, a junior from Mount Joy. Assisting in the business details were William Allmond, business manager, and James Utts, advertising manager, both of Altoona. The SCOUT was published under the supervision of the Publications Committee, on a budget from the college. Expenses were partly covered by advertisements from local merchants.

INDIAN

Published by the "J" Club at every home football game, the INDIAN is the official football program of Juniata College. Originally published for the Homecoming and Parents' Day games, the publishers decided to provide a program at every home game last fall, and standardized the name, calling it The INDIAN. Formerly, the Parents' Day edition was named The PAPOOSE, while the Homecoming issue bore the present day title.

Chiefly responsible for the work on The INDIAN was Jesse Garber, editor, and Paul Kleffel, business manager. Merle Brown, circulation manager, had charge of distribution. William Engel, Director of Publicity of the college, assisted in securing national advertising and dope on the opposing teams, and supervised all photographic work.

The Masque

The college dramatic society, the Masque, has one production a semester, under the direction of Miss Esther Doyle. The organization functioned this year under the leadership of Bill Fegan, president; Mary Phyllis Gibbs, vice-president; Jane Reidenbaugh, secretary; and Merrill Brown, treasurer.

For the Fall production, George Bernard Shaw's PYGMALION was selected—the story of Professor Higgins' transformation of Eliza Doolittle from a flower girl with a strong cockney accent into a cultured young lady. It was presented November 14 and 15.

For their Spring performance, the Masque selected DOVER ROAD, an absurd comedy by A. A. Milne. It was presented as an arena production—something completely experimental on college boards. This informal atmosphere, however, proved to be an interesting experience for both performers and audience; the latter viewing the action from the four sides of the stage and at close range.

In connection with the plays, points are awarded to cast, crew, and committees on the basis of efficiency and responsibility. When an individual accumulates 100 points he becomes a member of the honorary dramatic society, the Masquers. It is from this group that the president of the Masque is selected. During the first semester Jack Buckle, Lois Esaley, Doris Eshbach, Geraldine High, Marjorie Muller, and George Parsons received their Masquer keys.

In addition to the major productions, the Masque held meetings every other week throughout the year at which time dramatic interpretations were rendered, dramatic techniques discussed, and previews of coming productions were presented. From time to time during the year, members also were privileged to attend various dramatic presentations at Penn State. In the Fall, for example, they saw the Penn State Players arena interpretation of OUT OF THE FRYING PAN. During Spring vacation a group spent several days in New York, here coming in direct contact with broadway hits and meeting notable actors and actresses.

Especially interesting for the actors and technicians were the radio broadcasts. During the Fall term an adaptation of THE FALL OF THE HOUSE OF USHER was broadcast with a definite professional atmosphere.

The "Play"

PYGMALION — and a little girl shall lead them.

DOVER ROAD — make mine with an audience.

DOVER ROAD — I'm standing this one out.

PYGMALION — a struggle for survival.

DOVER ROAD — and remember, no mingling with the guests.

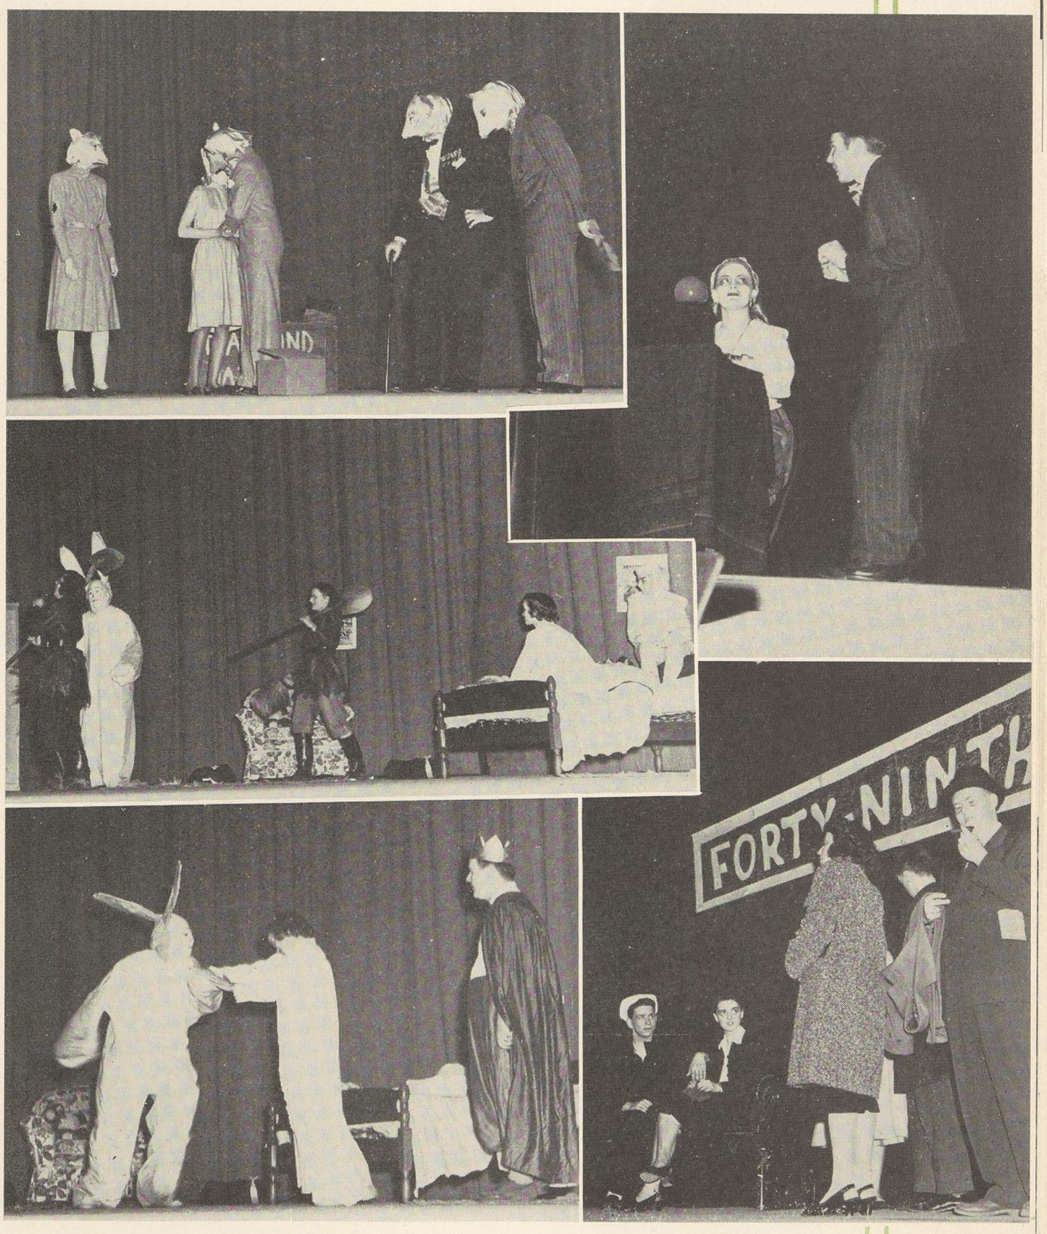
All Class Night

With an out-of-this-world skit called FANTASY, the Seniors this year turned in a top-notch winning performance, giving the class of '48 its second consecutive win and entitling it to have its numerals again engraved on the All Class Night cup. Ruth Steele, author of the prizewinner, also directed this tale of a little girl who was afraid of the dark. Patty could not sleep at night, so the elf king brought her favorite story book characters to life—Bugs Bunny, the Seven Dwarfs, Old King Cole, Ferdinand the Bull, and the Reluctant Dragon, who fumed real smoke from his nostrils. With a chorus backstage to sing appropriate music, the Seniors easily charmed the judges and the audience.

The Juniors used comic strip characters and a German refugee boy in their skit, ACH! AMERICANS! and the Sophomores fell in line with a blank verse satire on world affairs labeled THEY BELLED THE CAT. The Freshmen provided an interesting glance into men's minds with their skit, I DANCE IN MY DREAMS, in which a sailor and a girl poked polite fun at the group assembled in a subway station.

With these diverse ideas for miniature productions, All Class Night was one of the most successful events of the year.

Micetros of a new world order.
Now, my wife . . .
And take it from me . . .
The ears have it.
A dream by any other name . . .



A Cappella Choir

"That new look" was acquired by the Juniata College A Cappella Choir when the black gowns and white stolls which had been worn for the past fifteen seasons were discarded in favor of new robes of navy blue poplin with gold satin stolls. Having more candidates than ever before in the choir's history from which singers might be chosen, a select group of thirty-six voices were brought together and skillfully blended to form a choir which had one of the most outstanding seasons since its formal organization sixteen years ago.

Enlarging its itinerary in ever widening circles from year to year, the choir sang in such cities as Vineland, N. J., and Abington, Lansdale, and Lower Merion in Pennsylvania during its bi-annual eastern tour. The trip this year required a precedent-breaking nine days and was made during the first part of February. In the weeks that followed this tour, several week-end trips were made to such places as McConnelsburg, Waynesboro, Hagerstown, Lewistown, New Enterprise, Altoona, and other near-by cities. Featured on these concerts were the girls' varsity trio, consisting of Helen Roudabush, Joyce Hutchison, and Charlotte Beam, and the varsity male quartet, whose members were Robert Blough, Charles Walters, Gerald Hartzel, and Cassel Coffman. In addition to the concerts sung in churches the choir visited various high schools where they were enthusiastically received.

On Palm Sunday the Choir, in cooperation with the local churches of Huntingdon, presented "The Crucifixion" by Stainer. Augmented by returning alumni and by other singers, the A Cappella Choir sang the oratorio, "Saint Paul," by Mendelssohn on Sunday evening of commencement week.

Professor Charles Luther Rowland has been director of the Choir since its organization in 1932. From his first connection with the college in 1920 he had directed separate glee clubs for the men and the women of the college. During these early years dramatic cantatas based on the lives of Ruth, Saul, and Belshazzer were presented at commencement time. In 1929 the oratorio "Elijah" was first sung at commencement and since then the three major oratorios, "Elijah," "Messiah," and "Creation" have been sung alternately. Director Rowland enjoys the unique record of having presented a Mother's Day concert each Mother's Day Sunday evening since his very first year at Juniata. This year marks the twenty-eighth consecutive concert by glee clubs and choir in the St. James Lutheran Church in Huntingdon.

Those responsible for successfully leading the Choir through this eventful season were: Paul Kleffel, president; Robert Brashear, manager; Miriam Dickey, assistant manager; Gladys Clemens, secretary; Cassel Coffman, treasurer; and Frances Little, publicity.

Orchestra

The Juniata College Symphony, under the inspired leadership of Professor Herman Scholl, is an active organization on campus which presents two well-planned concerts during the school year. These concerts, given prior to Christmas vacation and during Commencement week this year were an inspiring success, and were well attended in proportion to our increased enrollment and larger percentage of musicians. By broadcasting the concerts, this near-professional group has gained a very favorable reputation from the unseen critics of the radio audience.

The music chosen this year for presentation in concerts was carefully selected, always with the tastes and appreciations of the audience in mind. Classical and modern selections were arranged on the same program with at least one more familiar composition. Contemporary and lesser known composers were included in programs with such composers of note as Bach, Schubert, Trescobaldi, Offenbach, Strauss, and Humperdinck. The music was rehearsed in detail every week in preparation for the performance. These regular rehearsals were very stimulating and challenging to the members of the orchestra who derived from them valuable experience and enjoyment.

Characteristic of Professor Scholl's programs were the instrumental ensembles which preceded the orchestral selections. This year the Juniata Symphonette, composed of several members of each section of the orchestra, played during the intermissions of the Fall production of the Masque. . . . a unique innovation for both the orchestra and the Masque.

The officers of the orchestra this year were: President, Glenn Cave; Vice-president, Bill Wright; Secretary-Treasurer, Elma Stine; and Librarian, Miriam Dickey.

Band

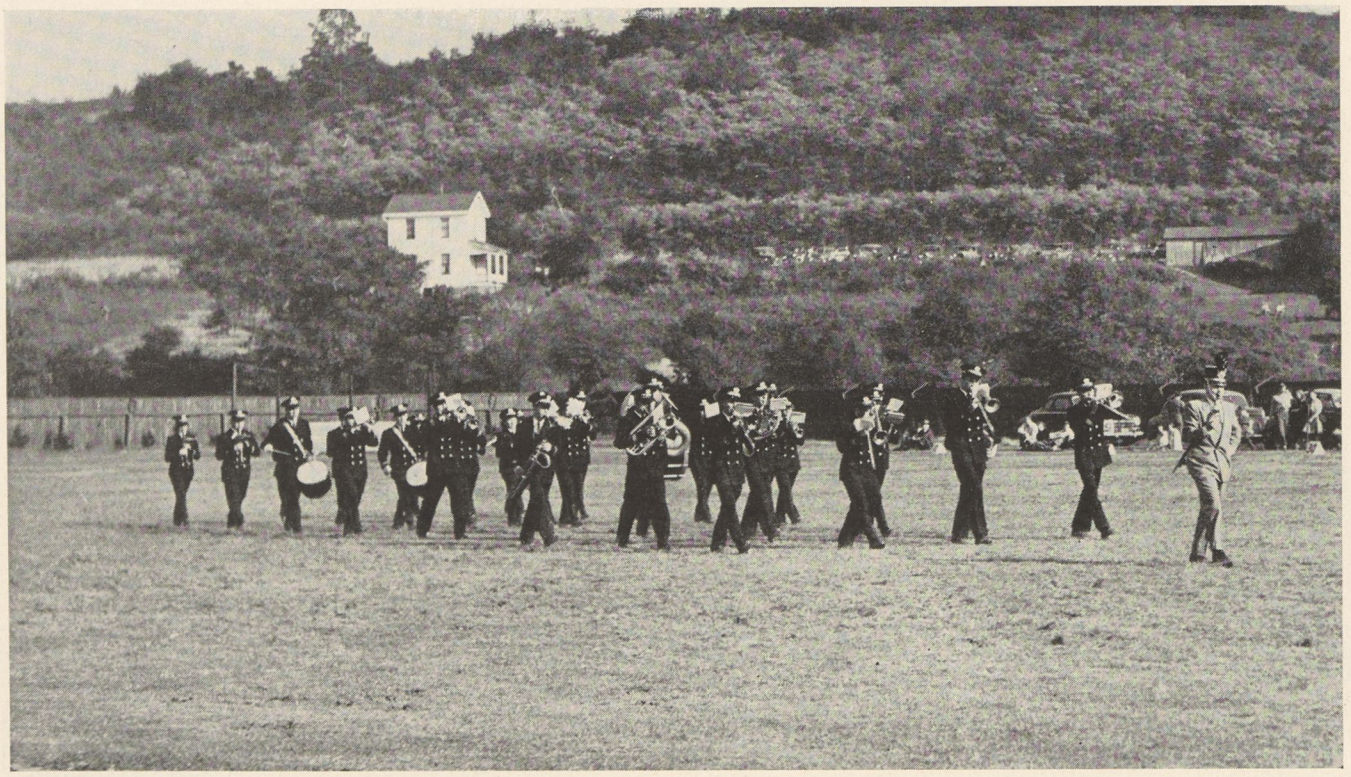
Marking the beginning of the second year of the Juniata post-war band last fall, we went all out and we all went out for the band. And who wouldn't?—for Parents Day saw us all decked out in new navy blue and gold uniforms that made us strut with pride and play like the Marine Band itself. Our drum major and majorettes in their lighter colors provided the necessary contrast to make us an eye-catching group wherever we appeared. We were plenty good and we wanted people to know it. Our playing had zip and our uniforms had zip.

Under the direction of Prof. Herman Scholl, we played at all the home football games and displayed every marching technique in the book. Dissatisfied with showing off at home, we went along to Selinsgrove for the Susquehanna battle. Juniata lost the game, but only because our appearance on the field was limited to half-time. We were on hand for all the pep rallies and team send-offs, too—anywhere we could help out.

Remember Homecoming? Echoes from pieces like "Happy Days Are Here Again" and "A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody," to mention only a couple, are still being applauded. And on Sadie Hawkins Day we even had them out dancing on the field! Remember?

When the weather turned crisp we ducked indoors for rehearsals, warming up our feet and our old selections simultaneously. Basketball season found us on the go again until we were able to get outside for the Christmas Parade. This was really the first opportunity we had had to compare ourselves with other bands, and we gave ourselves a good mark.

In the Spring we concentrated on May Day music, turning out early and getting a head start. By the time the occasion rolled around we were ready with music that would have been a solid smash hit in any pageant. Nothing was too good for our queen. We did the year up brown with that final supporting roll, and thus put our own stamp of approval on another year's activities.



THE F. T. A.

2nd row: Helen Roudabush, Miriam Dickey, Lois Tromm, Doris Quinnell, Pat Zug, Lois Esaley, Eleanor Harris, Maxine Hutchison.

3rd row: Ruth Sollenberger, Betty Strait, Ruth Barkley, Evelyn Brumbaugh, Arlene Dunmire, Kathryn Fogle, Betty Erickson, Shirley Smith, Betsy Leach.

The F. T. A., open to all upperclass Education majors, enjoys the distinction of being one of the larger organizations on campus. It met monthly this year under the leadership of its president, Jack Schell, to discuss the nature of teaching as a profession, and to speculate on problems and trends. On hand at special meetings were outside speakers who spoke to the group on the work of their chosen field. Mr. Cameron, Principal of the Mount Union High School, Mr. Getty, Principal of the Huntingdon High School, and Mr. McGill, County Supt. of Schools were among those brought in to address the members. Individual dues entitle each member to a subscription of both the Pennsylvania School Journal and the N. E. A., the national magazine on Education.

The Fall activities featured a hay ride, and this Spring a banquet provided the outstanding social affair.

Vet's Club

The Veteran's Club, first organized in 1945 to provide a center for social and cultural functions for veterans, became the largest organization on campus this year with an active membership of over one hundred. Meetings were held in the Men's Day Student Room on the first and third Wednesday of each month.

One of the most important accomplishments of the organization was sponsoring of a banquet which was held at the Abbey Reformed Church. This was followed by a semi-formal dance at the college gym. The Juniata College Dance Orchestra organized under the auspices of the club, made its initial performance at the event. The club also sponsored a Thanksgiving dance and Christmas dance in the gym.

Officers this year were: President, Bob Schreffler; Vice-President, Sam Hastings; Secretary, Sam Woodring; and Treasurer, Bob Trostle.

2nd row: Lucille Horton, Christine Crowell, Geraldine Heinlein, Margaret Shaffer, Ilene Altemus, Mary Louise Myers, Kitty Long, Mary Musser, Pat Zug, Joan Jenson, Julia Emigh, Judith Nicely.

3rd row: Martha Ellwein, Janet Baughman, Miriam Landis, Jane Bashore, Gladys Jackson, Jean Brown.

Lambda Gamma

"We build not for school, but for life." This motto of the Lambda Gamma, the Home Economics organization on campus, is its basis for action. The girls broaden their backgrounds through recreation and work projects, sharing the benefits of their activities with the entire student body. Every school function presents an opportunity for this group to shine, for "the girls in white" are on hand for plays and games alike, showing off their culinary talents in most appetizing ways and proving that the endless hours spent over a hot stove can bring tantalizing results.

Seeking, as always, to increase their fund of information, the club members invited outside speakers to their meetings to supplement classroom work and lend that practical air which always makes a study seem more real.

The variety of activities upon which the club embarked this year lent interest and spice to delving into many phases of a general education.

Alpha Beta Gamma

Existing exclusively for prospective elementary teachers, Alpha Beta Gamma is an association whose aim is to provide mutual benefits in the enlargement of the professional outlook and to acquaint students with the current trends in the field of elementary education.

Meetings this year were spirited and profitable. Experienced teachers in the field who spoke at regular meetings succeeded in proving to the members that enthusiasm is catching and that real joy lies in seeing the fruits of labor grow into valuable citizens.

To test their book learning the group was given every available means to put theory into practice. Many delightful hours were spent in the county library telling children of Huntingdon those stories children most like to hear, and weekly, the members broadcast a story for children over station WHUN from a script of their own. Such projects were valuable not only to those children who thrilled to hear them, but to the members themselves who, as prospective teachers, gained valuable experience.

The responsibility of guiding a club of this nature is one that cannot be taken lightly. Miss Reimard, faculty advisor, deserves special mention for directing club activities and arranging for members to gain first-hand experience.

1st row: Evelyn Brumbaugh, Miriam Hershberger, Dorothy Lehman, Louise Woodring, Arlene Dunmire, Shirley Smith, Betty Strait, Helen Foster, Miss Reimard.

2nd row: Mary Ankeny, Dottie Smith, Mona Thompson, Lena Bence, Betsy Leach, Grace Smeltzer, Mary Brumbaugh, Ruth Sollenberger, Mary Louise Gindlesberger.

I. V. C. F.

As a part of a national student Christian movement, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship on Juniata's campus exists for the many rather than for the few, being one of the few campus organizations open to everyone. Here opportunity is provided for Bible study, personal witnessing, and the maintenance of a sound testimony for Christ.

Meetings this year were held each Thursday, where Bible study was conducted both by students and outside speakers. Miss Barbara Dixon, staff member representing this area, held individual conferences with students the week of November 10 and led group discussions for practical help.

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship joined with Penn State in the spring in a conference designed to share problems and ideas. This took the form of an inspirational and recreational outing. Earlier in the year the group held a "doggie roast" in Sherwood Forest, with Bible quizzes and special entertainment rounding out the occasion.

Officers for the year included: Beth Wenzel, President; Don Sease, Vice-President; John Dilling, Secretary-Treasurer.

1st row: Doris Harvey, Connie Loizeaux, Beth Wenzel, Shirley Smith, Louise McWherter, Benita Metcalfe.
2nd row: Mary Crouthamel, Georgiamary White, Ruth Sollenberger, Miriam Landis, Pauline Beaver, Carolyn Smith
3rd row: Cecilia King, Clyde Mellinger, Don Sease, Edith Roberts, Charles Pickell, Harold Kenepp, Floyd McDowell.

Ministerium

The Ministerium, a fellowship of student ministers who are vitally interested in Christian affairs, forms an important nucleus of campus religious life. Each Wednesday evening this year two members of the Ministerium went to the county jail to conduct services and the fellowship as a unit sponsored the collection of literature for the "Pennsylvania Institution for Defective Delinquents."

At an early meeting Charles Pickell was elected President, Clyde Mellinger, Vice-President and Warren Groff, Secretary-Treasurer. Meetings were held monthly, at which time guest speakers were heard on some phase of religious work. One interesting aspect of the meetings was a discussion on pastoral work, including the pastoral call and sermons. Members were guests of President C. N. Ellis at their initial meeting of the year, and again in the spring the president served as host at the annual Ministerium banquet.

The Ministerium was active, too, in intra-mural sports, fielding teams on football, basketball, and softball.

1st row: Jack Baker, Edwin Crist, Clyde Mellinger, Don Robinson, Don Se se, Warren Groff.
2nd row: Albert Guyer, Paul Kleffel, Blair Carbaugh, Lloyd Newlin, Ben Lavey, Professor Neff.
3rd row: Paul Patterson, Don Hurley, Paul Shaffer, Charles Pickell, Harold Kenepp, Maurice Strausbaugh.

1st row: Mikki Duggan, Betty Walker, Miriam Landis, Dorothy Derringer, Ruth Barkley.
2nd row: Margaret Roop, Jean Hafer, Doris Quinnell, Betty Finnegan, Mary Crouthamel, Thelma Alley, Genevieve May.
4th row: Keith Bloom, Don Norris, Fritz Stirner.

I. R. C.

The International Relations Club completed the most active year in its history with the close of this college year, a year in which it emerged as one of the more worthwhile of college interests. At its initial meeting in September the club set as its goal the "intelligent study of the affairs of men and of nations, that the members of this club might take their place in the struggle to create a fellowship of men." In the light of this resolve the club proceeded to devote meetings to the study of world problems, especially those immediately threatening peace.

In the Fall, the club sponsored a series of four speakers who appeared in Oller Hall before college and community audiences. Dr. Kenneth Landon, Acting Chief of the Division of South East Asian Affairs spoke on the problem of nationalities in Asia, and their struggle for independence. Dr. Michael Dorizas, of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, spoke on Russia and her aims in the modern world. Among the most popular of the lecturers was Jan V. Hyka, of the Czechoslovakian delegation to the United Nations, who told his audience of the plight of the small nations of Central Europe. The concluding speaker of the series was Mr. Robert Cecil, First Secretary of the British Embassy in Washington, who spoke on Britain's Labor Government.

For its Christmas meeting the club turned its attention again to the enigma of Russia today, and served as refreshment the traditional Russian dish of borscht and a Russian tea. Speakers at this meeting were Joanne Bell, Jack Buckle, and Yvonne Smith.

During the second semester of the year the I. R. C. undertook an extended study of the American State Department and how its policies are made. The club year closed with the election of officers for the next term, and a program on the United Nations.

As a part of its activities during the year the club sent out two panels of speakers: one, composed of Otis Jefferson, James Utts, Sam Woodring and Ben Lavey discussed the Marshall Plan before a series of clubs in the central Pennsylvania district; the other, made up of James Gittings, Lisa Glade, Jean Hafer, Robert Anderson and Robert Smith presented a series of appeals throughout the area for support of the United Nations. The club also presented two radio broadcasts on these subjects.

The club in all seriousness attempted throughout the year to fulfill its mission on the campus, that of awakening and guiding student interest in the affairs of the world. It believes itself to have a responsibility in persuading the students of the college to take a part now, in the problems that will affect their lives later.

Officers of the club for this year were James Gittings, President; Otis Jefferson, Vice-President; and James Altman, Secretary. Meetings were held in the newly remodelled I. Harvey Brumbaugh House.

Le Cercle Francais

Organized to promote a better understanding of France and its culture, the club is open to all those majoring in French or who are otherwise interested in the language and life of the French people. Featured at meetings this year were French games and songs, as well as readings and reports on various phases of French culture. The highlight of the year was a Christmas Party, at which the Christmas Story was read in French.

In January the group welcomed into its midst Leilah Alaoui a native of France, come to this country to study. Leilah told of many of her experiences, and interest surged as the club took on new life. Her encounters during the war and her reasons for liking America were both interesting and thought provoking.

Officers this year were Betty Ruth Hess, President, and Gwen Nyce, Secretary.

1st row: Doris Eshbach, Gwen Nyce, Betty Hess, Miss Shaffer.
2nd row: Benita Metcalfe, Don Norris, Virginia Fornwalt, Marge Muller, Harold Kenepp, Thelma Quant.

Chemistry Club

1st row: Consuelo Garcia, Virginia Weaver, Mary Ono, Margaret Buch, Marian Johnson, Lucille Horton, Janet Allen, Joan Jensen.
2nd row: Stan Briggs, James Palmer, William Rosensteel, Clyde Reeder, Robert Miller, Bill Murray, Luke Shuler, Thurman Grossnickle.

It takes an active organization to meet the needs of these future chemists of the world as they prepare for their role in the tomorrow which lies ahead, and, although their chief annual project of doing research by way of field trips to near-by chemical industries has been taken from them and incorporated into one of the chemistry courses, they have nevertheless maintained a vigorous schedule of events for the club. At the club's regular meetings during the first semester of the year guest speakers, faculty advisors, and student members spoke to the group on subjects ranging from "Laboratory First-Aid" to "A Chemist's View of the Situation in Europe."

During the second semester the club heard lectures by former chemistry students of Juniata College who have been doing active work in the field since their school days. In addition, the club visited a chemical plant in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, held a party in the gymnasium, and went off campus for a picnic in the spring.

The officers this year were: Stanley Briggs, President; Virginia Weaver, Vice-President; Margaret Buch, Secretary-Treasurer. Dr. Brumbaugh, Dr. Rockwell, and Dr. Davis are faculty advisors to the club.

1st row: Clo Nicastro, Mary Ono, Beth Wenzel, Dan Sell, Inez Lovelass, Rhoda McCord, Thelma Six.

Scalpel and Probe

Biology is the keyword with this club and the chief interest of its members. The organization's constitution was revamped this year so that the restriction limiting membership to pre-medical students having eleven hours in biology might be nullified. Now, any student who has completed one semester of work in this subject may become a member.

In addition to holding regular meetings once a month, the club made a trip to Philadelphia and several shorter trips to hospitals near-by to observe medical and surgical treatment. Local doctors lectured to the group from time to time throughout the year on topics pertaining to the latest developments in the medical profession.

Dr. Homer C. Will and Dr. Pressley L. Crummy were the faculty advisors who worked with Dan Sell, president; Louise Sileo, vice-president; Rhoda McCord secretary-treasurer; the program committee; and each member of the club to gain for it considerable recognition among the other campus organizations.

Camera Club

Despite its comparatively recent appearance on Juniata's campus, the Camera Club has, in the two years of its existence, become known as one of the most active student organizations. During the first semester, in addition to hearing a series of lectures pertaining to such things as the camera, light in photography, and developing and printing of pictures, the members of the club did individual work in the dark-room. A contest was held to determine who had taken and printed the best picture on Mountain Day. The judging for this contest took place at the club's Hallowe'en party, held this year in the woman's day student room. Activities of the second semester included work in advanced processing, portraiture, photographic make-up, and technique in taking pictures. Two photography contests were held by the club during this semester.

The club has definite aims which it, as a small but earnest group, strives diligently to carry out. These aims are to provide materials and equipment for developing pictures and films, to teach beginners in photography the basic principles needed in the developing and taking of pictures and to provide pictures for the campus publications. At an early meeting, Harry Ball was elected president.

3rd row: John Grasse, Floyd McDowell, Thurman Grossnickle, George Layman.

W. A. A.

"A girl for every sport, and a sport for every girl." This, the motto of the Women's Athletic Association, finds fruit in its members, for every member of the W. A. A. has participated in women's sports, attended monthly meetings to help plan programs, and cooperated in the support of these programs. During the winter monthly meetings frequently took the form of informal social gatherings where recreation was provided.

Mrs. Smaltz, together with the club officers, appointed chairman for various sports early in the year, following which schedules were drawn up and teams organized. Hockey, basketball, volleyball, and softball provided the most thrilling scenes of action, and the climax of the W. A. A. program came doubtless with the Soph-Frosh Homecoming clash on the hockey field, which ended this year in a stalemate. Members of championship intra-mural teams were awarded personal charms by the W. A. A.

The final sports feature of the year was the banquet at the Penn Koffee Shoppe for the W. A. A. Newly elected officers were installed and new members to the organization were welcomed. This year's officers were: Pat Gribben Miller, Pres.; Melva Fleishman, Vice-Pres.; Jane Bashore, Sec.; and Vivian Souder, Treas.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club was organized to encourage students to speak Spanish, recognizing that a knowledge of the language can be an effective tool in economics and politics.

This year the club met the first Tuesday of the month, and meetings were highlighted by first hand reports from those of its members who were natives of Spanish speaking countries. Consuelo Garcia and Thelma Quant from Nicaragua, and Lydia Chacon and Louisa De Puga from Cuba told of the music and customs of their home countries and taught Spanish and Latin American dances to the group. Short skits were sometimes presented by members, in Spanish, and speakers from other colleges were invited in to lecture on the customs, music, art, and literature of Spain and Latin America.

In the spring the club had a Pinata Party which proved to be one of the year's highlights. A clay pot, depending from the ceiling and filled with gifts, was the center of attraction. This was lowered and the gifts distributed among members.

Officers were: Maxine Hutchison, President; Consuelo Garcia, Vice-President; Thelma Quant, Secretary-Treasurer. Faculty advisors were Miss Shamlian and Miss Knuth.

1st row: Miss Shamlian, Treva Reed, Betty Sherry, Doris Eshbach, Maxine Hutchison, Virginia Fornwalt, Consuela Garcia, Arville Knuth.

2nd row: Geraldine High, Mary Bemus, Thelma Quant, Beth Reed, Louise McWherter, Betty May.

3rd row: Marion Abdill, Betty McElwain, Betty Alderfer, Gwendolyn Nyce, Kathryn Fogle, Margaret McNitt.

4th row: Doris Quinnell, Betty Hess, Marjorie Muller, Edith Roberts, Betsy Wright.

5th row: Robert Malone, Robert Claycomb, Bill Livengood, Joseph Ciampa, Raymond Kreider.

Elizabeth Taylor, David Armacost, Dr. Henry, Benjamin Lavey, Alfred Crease, Phyllis Baughman, Otis Jefferson.

Debate

The Juniata College Debating Society has successfully completed its first post-war year of activities. On October the fourteenth the society met for the first time and elected the following officers: Benjamin Lavey, President; Otis Jefferson, Vice-President; Alfred Crease, Treasurer; Phyllis Baughman, Secretary. Dr. Tobias F. Henry, a Juniata debator of years gone by, was elected coach of the organization. Under the able direction of Dr. Henry the organization compiled a record of which it may well be proud. After a number of preliminary debates the society took up the national question: "Resolved that a federal world government should be established." Then teams were organized. For the affirmative were Benjamin Lavey, Elizabeth Taylor, and David Armacost; for the negative were Otis Jefferson, Phyllis Baughman, and Alfred Crease. When research was completed the teams embarked on a series of intercollegiate debates. The teams traveled to Elizabethtown College, the Penn State Undergraduate Center, and the Twelfth Annual Pennsylvania Debator's Convention at Penn State College. The year's activities were highlighted by a trip to the First Pennsylvania Debate Tournament at Allegheny College, Meadeville, Pennsylvania where the Blue and Gold tied for fifth place in a state-wide panel. The major upset of the year was the affirmative's victory over Temple University.

The Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is one of the largest groups on campus. This year it claimed as members all of the women resident students with the exception of five, in addition to many members among the day student group.

Ruth Rittenhouse has very ably and faithfully served as its president, being assisted throughout the year by the following officers: Vice-President, Betty Kiracofe; Secretary, Maxine Hutchison and Treasurer, Ruth Steele. Mrs. Calvert Ellis, Mrs. Earnest Hall, Miss Jane Miller, and Mrs. Edgar Kiracofe acted as advisors to the organization.

The Y. W. C. A., as its triangular insignia indicates, has a three-fold aim—the development of a perfect body, a keen mind and a Christ-like spirit. The year's program of activities has been very much in keeping with these aims. The Y. W. C. A. again sponsored the "big sister movement." The general mixer, too, at the beginning of the school term was planned and directed by this group. A chapel program presented by members of the "Y" exemplified a more serious side of its program.

Various other activities of the year included "heart sister week," pajama parties, and the printing of the "Student Directory." The efforts of the organization along lines of Christian service and charity resulted in presenting Christmas baskets to needy families, conducting clothing drives for European Relief, and contributing to the World Student Service Fund and the Opal Stech Fund.

1st row: Ruth Steele, Beth Wenzel, Joan Stayer, Virginia Weaver, Gladys Clemens.

Tycoon Club

Strictly a business proposition, the Tycoon Club revived this year, exists exclusively for Juniata's business hopefuls. All fields of business and economic activity are topics of discussion for this group at their bi-weekly meetings, as they seek to develop a well-rounded interest in current business and finance. Helping them to realize this purpose have been several outside speakers, among whom were Mr. Strait, cashier of Huntingdon's First National Bank, and Mr. John Hill, real estate broker from Altoona, who was twice a visitor in the club's midst this year.

Piloting the club on the beginning of its pilgrimage to Wall Street this year were Jack Lang, President, Jim Utts, Vice-President; and Mary Faye Hannum, Secretary-Treasurer.

2nd row: Charles Hess, Bill Nyce, Cassel Coffman, Carl Moore, Matthew Hiney, Jack Shaffer, Charles Walters, Cline Hadaway.

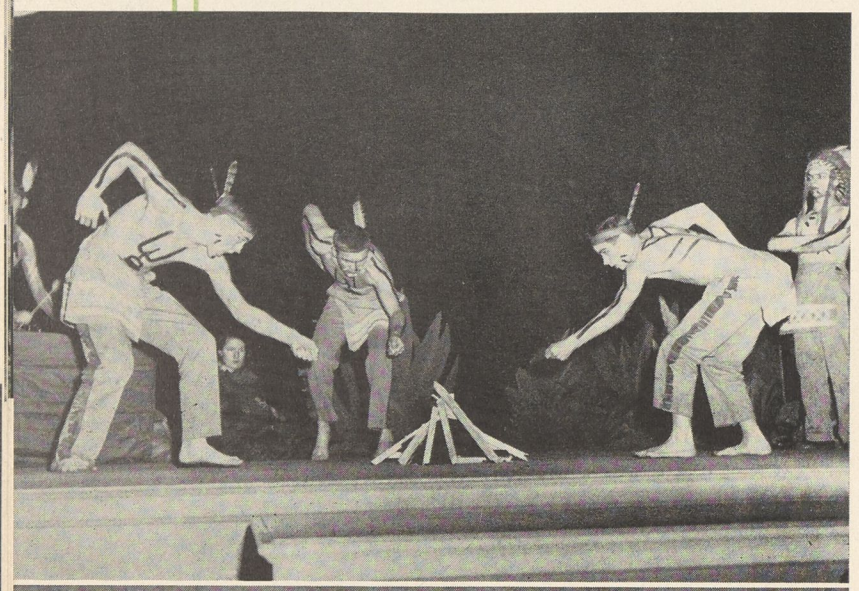
Choral Speaking Group

The Choral Speaking Group was reorganized early in the year by those students interested in the interpretation of literature. Some years before the war the group had been an active part of campus life, but fell by the wayside along with other activities when war came. Now revitalized, choral speaking has once again asserted its place among active campus organizations and has expanded its program to meet the demands of more diversified audiences. At an early meeting, Alice Banks was elected president and Thurman Grossnickle was elected secretary. Directed by Miss Doyle, the group met semi-weekly.

In December, the choral verse group broadcast selections over station WHUN and later presented them to the college. The relatively small number of people participating simplified the problems of directing and permitted the directress to mould them into a unified whole. To the college, the choral verse group this year has proved the principle that accomplishment often lies in the hands of a few. Not only was this group a nucleus of literary expression, but it trained students in voice projection and served as a source from which the Masque, Choir, and other organizations could draw for support. Selection of material for presentation was made with the special abilities of its members clearly in mind, in an effort to capitalize on talent. At the same time, audience appeal was considered. Their well-rounded program included such selections as "Rilloby Rill," "The Toy Band," "The King's Breakfast," and "Psalm 136."

1st row: Jane Lauffer, Alice Banks, Ferdose Chase, Joy Douglas.
2nd row: Mary Crouthamel, Betty Zlody, Betty May, Benita Metcalfe.
3rd row: Mary Brumbaugh, Shirley Frymire, Katherine Beaver, Betty Strait.
4th row: Howard Long, Miss Doyle, Thurman Grossnickle.

Student Production



AMERICANZA, first student production ever to reach the boards at Juniata, set a precedent which in years to come should be looked back upon with delight and pride. Performance reached a near-professional level under the gifted direction of Jack Shaffer, who with a talented staff, gave unselfishly of his time and energy to make AMERICANZA the production of the year.

Opening night drew a capacity attendance exceeding the fond expectations of even the most optimistic, and the cast carried throughout to give a barrel of high grade entertainment that surprised the players themselves. Audiences, too, were not unaware of the calibre of entertainment they were viewing. On opening night, patrons thundered their appreciation repeatedly in acknowledgment of a job superbly done, and enthusiastically went out to tell their friends about it. The next two nights reached even higher peaks both in performances and attendance, but perhaps never in the history of Oller Hall had such a tremendous ovation been accorded any first night appearance.

The fast moving series of scenes portraying the history of American music kept tempo at such a high pitch from the very beginning that it would be difficult to say which scene of the four acts was the best. The audience was spellbound from the initial dimming of the lights and the distant beating of tom-toms to the final curtain and return to reality. No small factor in creating this effect was the atmosphere contributed by James Kimmel and his group of talented instrumentalists. Without them the show could never have attained the climatic impact that it did. As in all great productions of this nature the orchestra was that element of which the audience was least aware but which would have been missed most had it not been there.

Things got under way in total darkness. When the beating of tom-toms reached a wild rhythmic pitch the curtains suddenly parted to reveal the drummer amid an Indian scene lighted in dark red. Nobody escaped the hypnotic effect of the primeval forest and boldly painted savages. From then on the audience was sold. Repeatedly they stopped the show during the first act with spontaneous applause. This dynamic effect was maintained throughout the entire performance whether in the dream scene with the eerie-lighted ballet dancers or the minstrel show in the following act.

The audience never expected that the college would possess such talent, and directors' opinions that talent was a matter of proper classification was confirmed. Singers made outstanding impressions and were called back so many times that demand for encores became almost a cause for embarrassment, for no provision had been made for such an emergency.

The show was well balanced and smooth running—airy in some places and supercharged with activity in others. It ended as it had begun —impressively. In the finale, a full stage of actors and actresses turned out to greet the audience in a scene that reached to the stars. That students should be able to create such dramatic effects without professional advice shall ever remain the miracle of the entire undertaking. It was difficult to say who was more pleased with the performance—the nervous student group blessed with unexpected success, or the doubtful audience that got ten times what it bargained for.

In every way AMERICANZA proved to be an overwhelming success. All Juniata is proud that it was able to father it. But to those who gave most freely of their time and energy it shall probably remain ever a mark of achievement which few other college honors can rival, for those hundred and fifty who participated actively or behind the scenes left something of themselves in their achievement which will forever provide them with a cherished memory of success against odds.

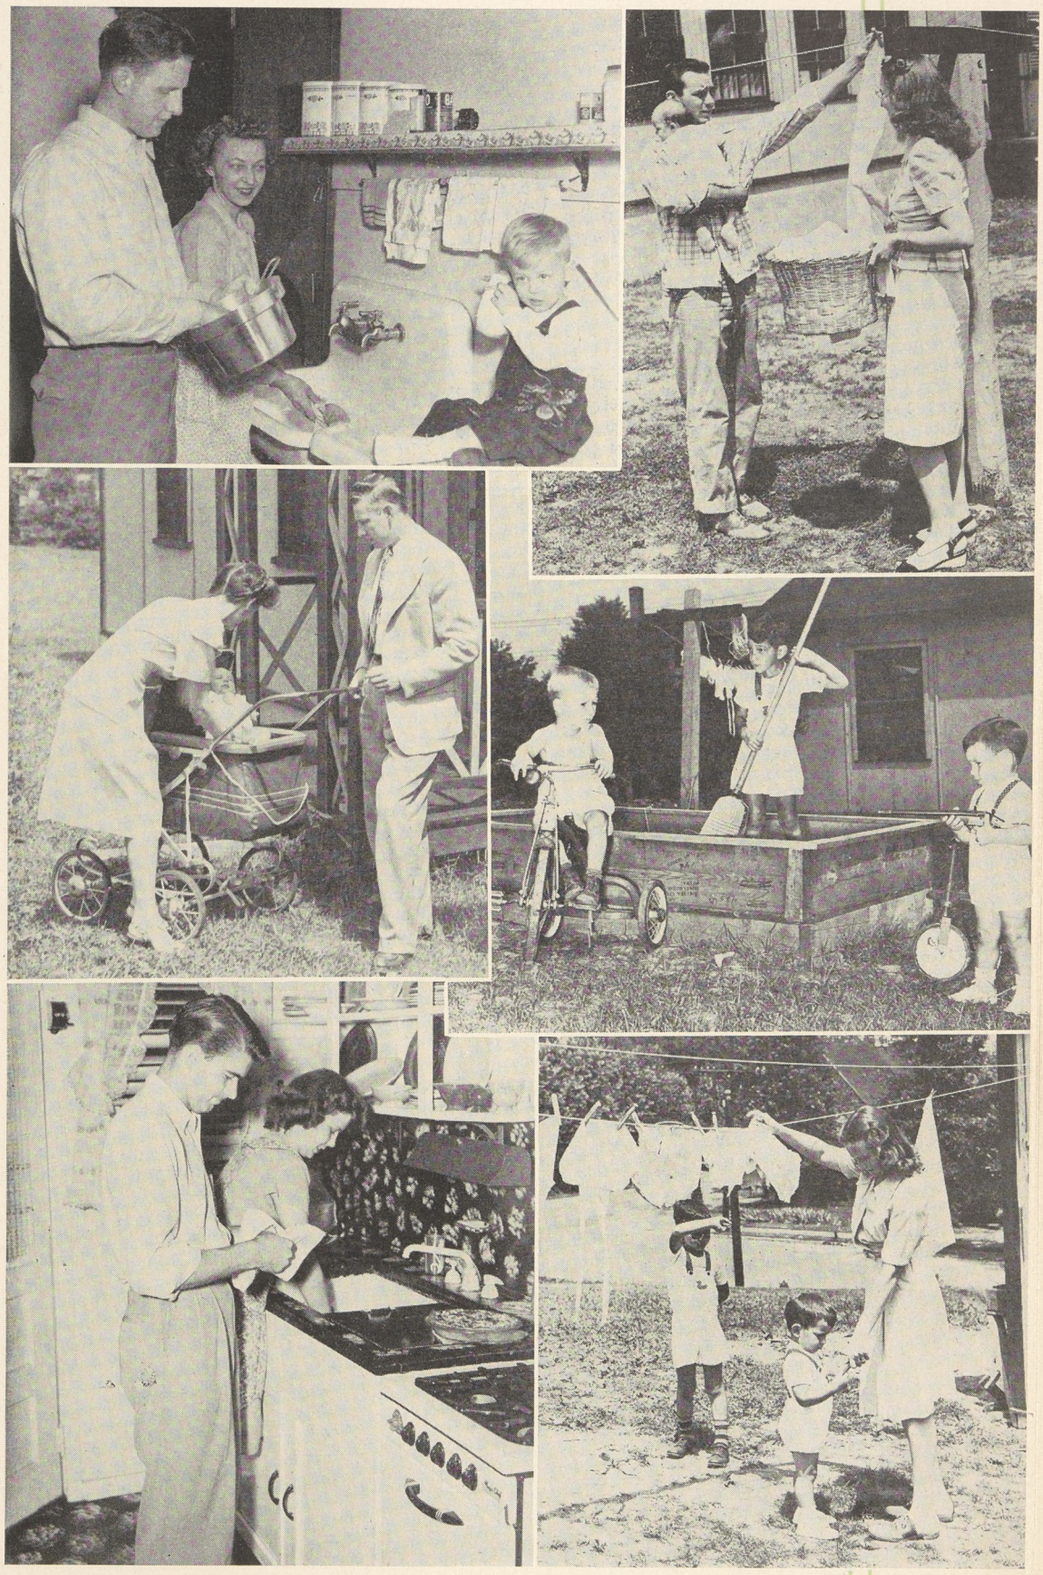
The Village

Juniata's own little residential section, The Village, provides facilities for married veterans and enjoys at once the unique distinction of being a community all its own and an integral part of campus life. The Village has its own representative on the Senate, an office especially created this year in recognition of the importance of Village life on campus. In addition, the villagers proved that marriage is no detriment to agility by putting a basketball team on the floor when intra-murals got underway.

Entering wholeheartedly into college social life, too, The Village came through in grand style with a party early in the year. But when parties, studies, and club activities aren't claiming the time of the Village, baby usually is. Daddy studies till midnight, walks the floor with Junior till four, and sleeps until seven thirty . . . all of which makes a hit with Mommy, and makes an A-student out of Daddy.



In the Fall . . .

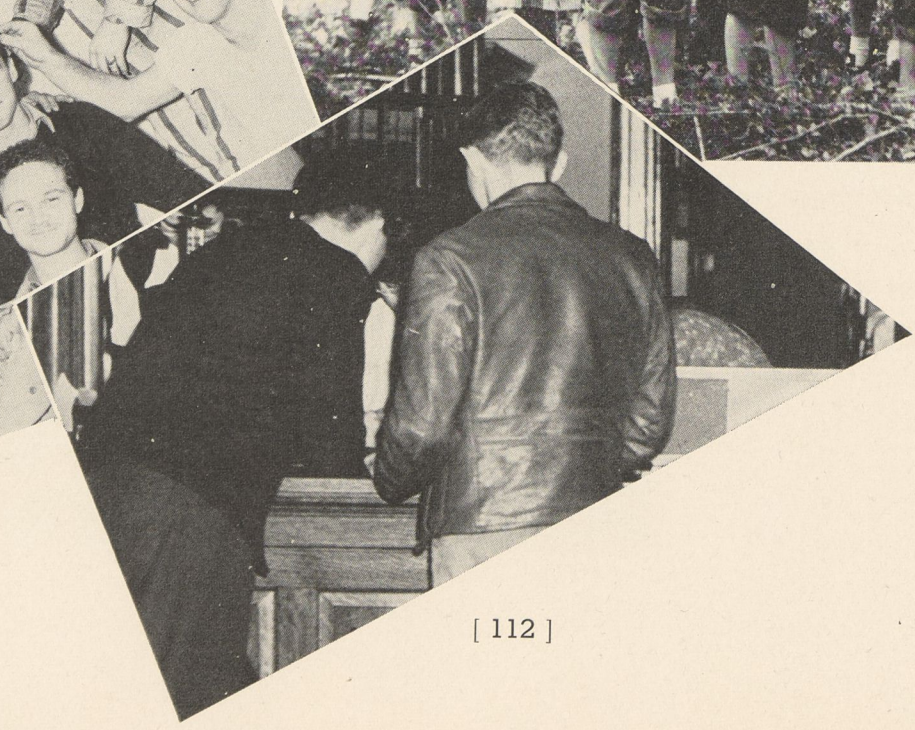
A REVUE

SEPTEMBER

Back to the coal mines . . . In the first flush of youth, the school year appears pretty rosy . . .

People, people . . . everywhere one turns, one realizes . . . that this year Juniata is fairly bursting at the seams with eager students . . . last year's record enrollment of 571 pales into nothingness beside this year's record enrollment of 680. . .

Lines in the book store . . . post office . . . people waiting in lines to be x-rayed . . . or to pay bills . . . or to see the registrar . . . or just to get acquainted . . . every September the story is the same . . . "for men may come, and men may go . . ." and they do . . . "where are the snows of yesteryear?"—and where are the students of last semester? . . . . . but still the same business goes on . . . regardless of persons, the places remain . . . it makes a person feel so temporary. . . .



OCTOBER

"Fight and slug it at the Golden Nugget" . . . the seniors went all out . . . games, cake walk, fortune tellers, chorus lines, barbershop quartets, candied apples and homemade cider. . .

". . . and Czechoslovakia is not dominated in any way by Russia . . ." . . . in light of developments in March, this speech in October by Jan V. Hyka, member of the Czechoslovakian delegation to the United Nations and fourth in the I. R. C.'s series of lecturers, was most illuminating . . . Juniata was most fortunate to secure Mr. Hyka when it did . . . a few months later, and there would have been little for Mr. Hyka to say . . . "Bach, Boogie, and Templeton . . ." as pianist, Mr. Templeton proved a great showman. . . .

Madame Lush. Well, she might have been most anyone, except . . . and were you surprised when you finally knew? . . . Of course not, . . . you turned to your neighbor and said, "Oh I knew it all along, but I didn't want to say so because . . ." But the biggest surprise of the Masked Ball, we think, was the amazing wall murals done by Juniata's handy man of the arts, George Parsons. . . .

Oh, those high, high mountains . . . but wasn't it the most beautiful day in the whole world . . . the sky was so blue . . . the sun was so warm . . . "If winter comes, remember Mountain Day . . ."

NOVEMBER

Cheers for Miss Homecoming . . . Queen-for-a-day Betty successfully launched another new tradition to make this the most amazing year Juniata has seen in many a moon . . . With King Richard ruling the roost on the field during the game, and Queen Betty taking over as presiding dignitary during the half, you might say that the Kiracofe-Stever combination had the Homecoming situation well in hand . . . President Emeritus Ellis comes out with his history of Juniata . . . The incomparable, the ineffable Shaw . . . who else could have written so entrancingly the trial of a guttersnipe in conflict with her betters? . . . "PYGMALION" . . . and didn't you like the Masque's version? "The extraordinary Mr. Primrose . . . " Mr. Downes had something there . . . and so did Mr. Primrose . . . that was quite a night and quite a viola, too . . .

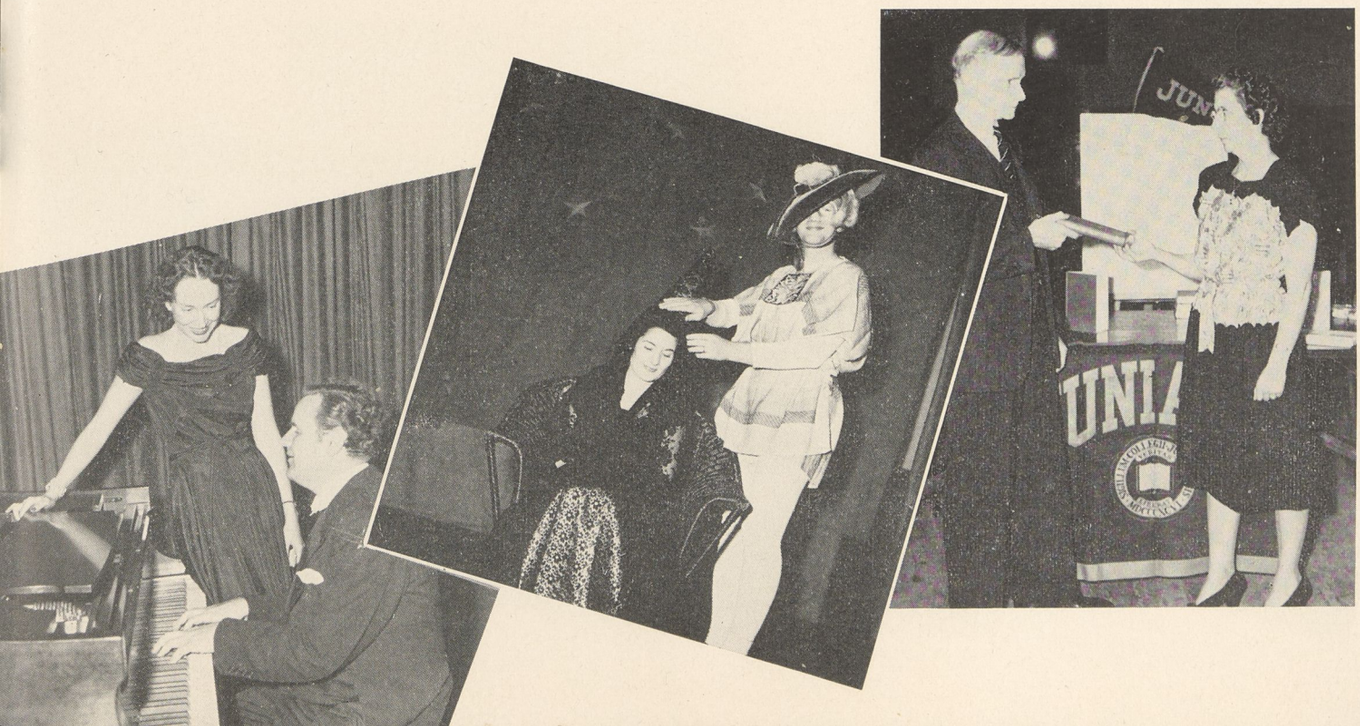
Wishful thinking for November . . . a swimming pool in the new gym. . . .

"Ef a gal ketches you then, yo're hern," to quote from modern American folklore . . . It's Sadie Hawkin's Day to which we have reference . . .

And then we had the great J Club dance–Veterans' Club dance controversy . . . to charge or not to charge. . . .

"The day the stands fell . . ." and Juniata nearly had a tragedy on its hands . . . it seems the ground was wet. . . .

The Freshman Initiation Incident undergoes rigid examination at the hands of the Senate . . . result, some much-needed reform.



In the Winter . . .

DECEMBER

Pep rallies continue popular ways to let off steam . . . the seniors lived up to their established reputation and walked off with the All-Class Night trophy for the second year in a row. . . .

"The man that hath no music in himself . . ." must be a dreary man, indeed . . . and let us hope that such a one did not find his way into Oller Hall December 18th . . . for that was a night of much music, indeed . . . the orchestra was in fine form . . . from Bach to Offenbach. . . .

"Dining Hall Attempts More Efficient Plan" announces the Juniatian bravely. . . .

"God bless us, every one . . ." Christmas just wouldn't be Christmas without a Christmas Carol . . . Up at five to sing for the faculty who had sung to us a night or so before . . . and was it cold!

High point in Campus religious life . . . The Spiritual Emphasis Week moved along smoothly . . . The Stone Church fairly bounced with all the discussions boiling within its well-ivied walls. . . .

"In football, sixty per cent of the game is played from the neck up." Provocative words of the month, spoken by Andy Kerr, Lebanon Valley grid coach, in explaining J. C.'s momentous victory . . . They didn't do so badly physically, either, we might add . . . It certainly was a great day for the Indians. . . .

Models for aspiring freshmen . . . the mighty ten . . . the seniors chosen to appear in the Who's Who . . . what more can we say? Their achievements speak for themselves.

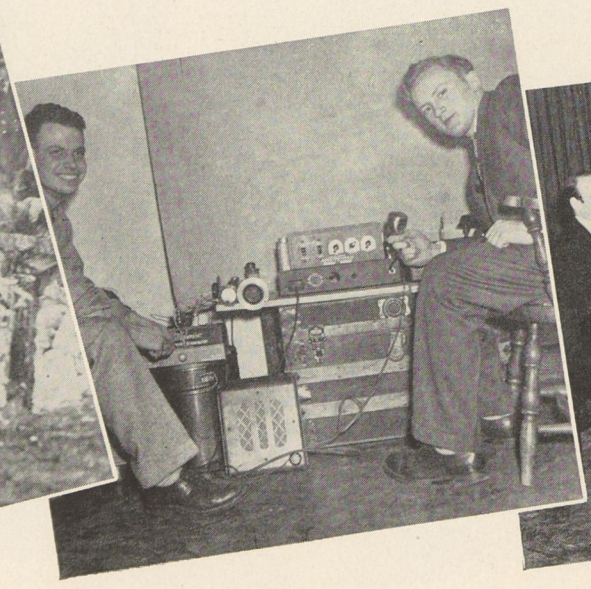
JANUARY

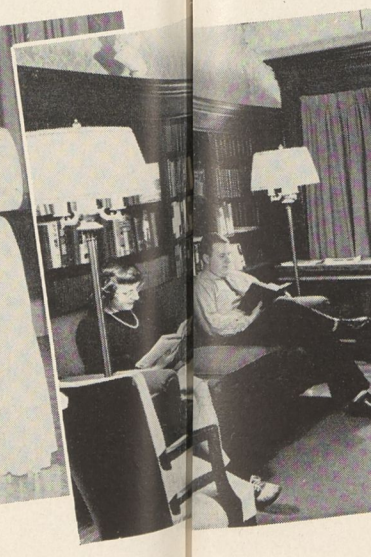
Big Sam and his ambitious crew of committee heads and eager solicitors swung into action in the biggest Juniata World Service Fund Drive history has ever seen . . . complete with Radio Station J. W. S. F. . . .

And then we have the six shy members of the class of '48 who slipped quietly out into the big, cruel world with hardly a word of farewell to those of us left behind . . . it's almost as if they couldn't wait to get that sheepskin framed and hung up over the mantle . . . or was it because they wished to depart as unostentatiously as possible . . . whatever their reason, we mourn their departure almost without being quite sure that they have left . . .

Politics has reared its unruly head with great abandon this year . . . One has only to read the editorial and the Letters to the Editor sections of the Juniatian to understand, that, secluded as Juniata may seem, the world is not forgotten here . . . (This will be news to some, we know . . .)

"Un bel di . . ." Opera lovers, stand up and be counted . . . and do some counting yourself . . . for Madame Butterfly was here to sing your favorite aria, not once but twice . . . Camilla Williams . . . and she looked nice, too. . . .





FEBRUARY

Since the "primrose path" has been officially declared trite and hackneyed as a phrase, the Masque has hastened into the breach and provided a new phrase to suggest the same train of thought . . . So now instead of the old, trite, unoriginal primrose path, the whole college is merrily traveling "The Dover Road" . . . "a rose by any other name. . ."

Flash! Scoop! Stop the presses . . . call the president . . . get out the fire department . . . Juniata does it again! Not only do we preserve tradition here on College Hill but, wonder of wonders, we break it, too!!! (End of build-up) To what do we refer? Why the J. W. S. F.'s GREAT MUSICAL EXTRAVAGANZA, "AMERICANZA," of course . . . "and who would have thought the old school to have so much talent in it " . . . (except Messrs. Saltzman and Shaffer, those men of vision and great persistence who found gold where others would have seen only a great mass of unorganized students. . . .)

MARCH

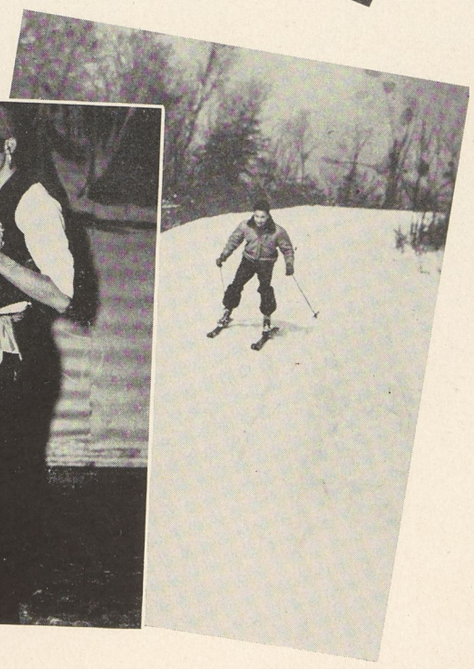
Rumors of great things to come . . . a telephone system for the girl's dorm . . . and what will happen to future freshmen who have not the privilege of serving their rightful desk-duty sentence. . . .

"An artist's life for me!" Shades of Greenwich Village and the Latin Quarter . . . But Mr. Reynard didn't seem to be from those places at all . . . in fact, we even heard someone say he came from Nebraska . . . which didn't interfere with his talents as an artist, as far as we could see. . . .

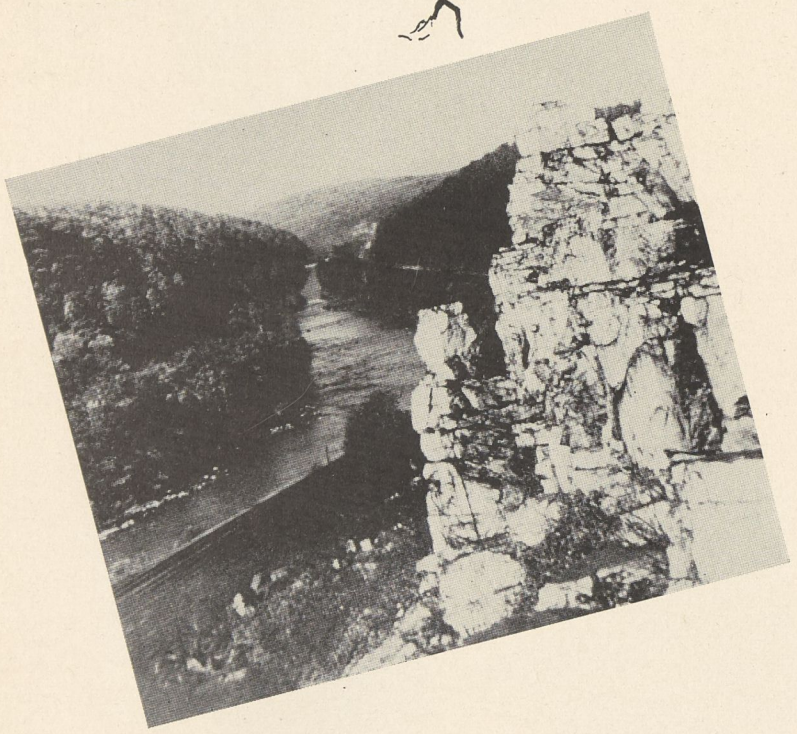
Every dog has its day . . . even an Irish dog . . . but for an Irish celebration the strains of "Dance, Ballerina, Dance" floating softly out into the frigid March air on the night of March 13 were slightly confusing. . . .

The Senate entered the Easter Parade this year . . . all decked out in a new Constitution. . . .

WHUN . . . well filled with Juniata talent this month . . . M.C. Burton and his on-the-spot interview with celebrities in and around Skip's lightened the gloom of one memorable Monday evening . . . the Debating Team fought and won a scrappy duel with an impressive Lebanon Valley duo . . . than there was "The Night Is Dark," courtesy of Saltzman and Company. . . .



In the Spring...



APRIL

"For lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of the birds is come . . ." Spring vacation . . . for seniors a last chance to review for comprehensives . . . for everyone else a week of ease and relaxation. . . .

General Information Contest . . . "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who is smartest one of all " . . . But this one isn't done with mirrors at all, we have discovered . . . the hard way. . . .

Tradition, tradition . . . which came first, Juniata or tradition? Every Move-Up Day we ask ourselves that same question . . . purely for the mental exercise, of course . . . because we know that not even President Ellis knows the answer. . . .

The new steam system is finally completed . . . Juniata's building program takes to the wing as plans get under way for a new dining hall . . . Baseball embarks on another successful voyage . . . the pitched crack of the bat and the spirited yells from the stands mean another Indian victory. . . .

MAY

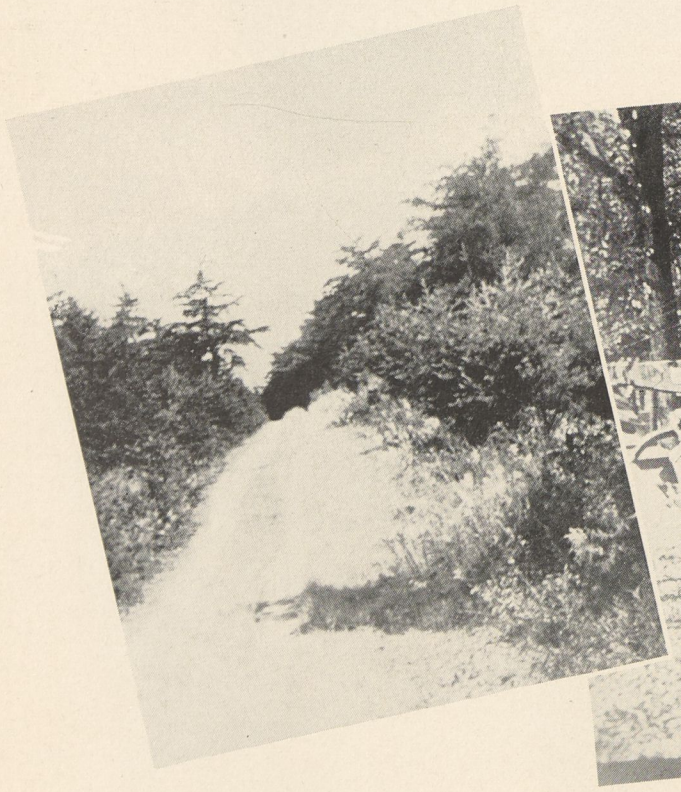
Some of the Seniors are having tea with Professor Dubbel, we hear . . . It's amazing how many fates in the course of history have managed to decide themselves in the short span of a tea party. . . .

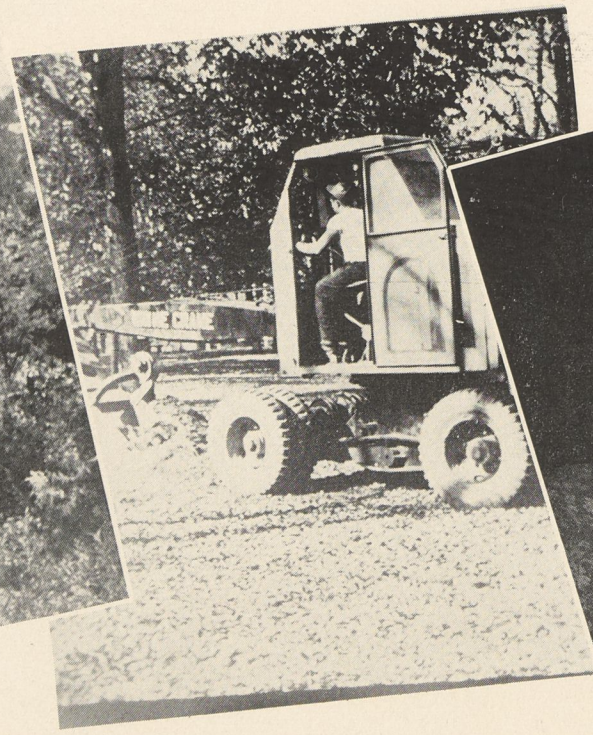
May Day . . . "Come, my Corinna, come let's go a-Maying. . ." the poet invites us, so what can we do but follow? Oh, to be Queen of the May! . . .

The Alfarata comes out all decked in green just like the rest of spring. . . .

Spring Fever . . . has a place in every college calendar . . . and the fact that its position is unofficial lessens its potency not one whit . . .

The athletic field is hardly the place to go in search of repose, either physical or mental, in the sunny month of May . . . What with guns going off, javelins and baseballs flying through the air, and dead umpires lying about underfoot, the athletic field is a going concern . . . and how many shots can a shot putter put in one afternoon?

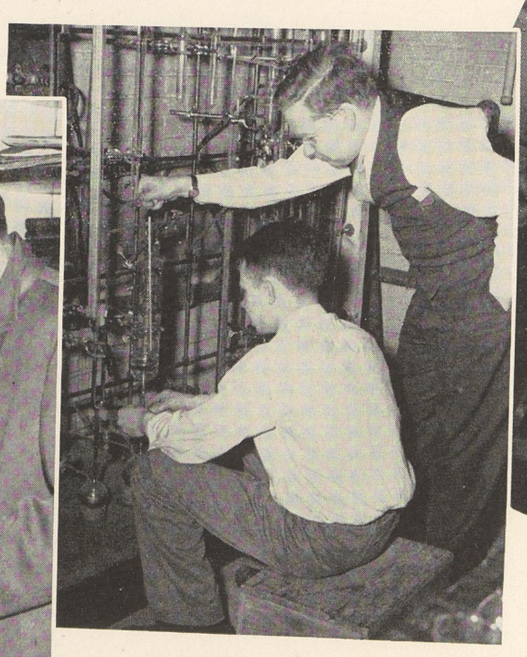




JUNE

And now comes the end, the end that is just the beginning . . . isn't that what they always say about graduation? . . . and aren't they right when they tell us that we are just beginning to live? . . . A solemn thought. . . .

Seniors may come and seniors may go . . . but there will always be underclassmen . . . Juniata bids one more fond farewell to a group of departing sons and daughters . . . some are destined to rise to new heights in their chosen field . . . some will be the men and women behind the scenes . . . but all will go forth to take their places in a world that is yelling for leaders . . . they will go forth with a feeling of confidence born of preparedness . . . and Juniata will remain a part of them in their mission. . .



In Closing . . .

May this yearbook in years to come serve you well as a source of renewed acquaintance with those friends and experiences you came to know and cherish while on College Hill. May it remind you of foggy mornings, bewitching evenings, humorous incidents, moments of decision, and the wealth of learning you acquired—both in the classroom and as a member of a college society.

May it encourage you to renew old friendships, revisit familiar sites, and return again to the books you found to your liking. And above all, may it be a yearbook you will always want to keep lying around near you instead of in that box in the attic. May you be proud to show it to your friends as a true symbol of a college you were proud to attend.

We are happy to bring you this book.

We who have worked on this year's Alfarata have had a broadening experience. It is regrettable that more of you were not able to participate in preparing the book itself, but since the book is for you and about you, it is right that you should not be introduced to it until the proper time. This is that time; we hope it may serve to brighten many hours in the years to come.

Especially do I wish to extend my thanks to Wayne Schrott of Conemaugh for his time and diligence in the interest of our book; to the J. Horace McFarland Co. for their excellent printing and binding; to Edwards Studio for their outstanding portrait work; to Harry Ball, Paul Yoder, and Tom Shoemaker for their active interest and cooperation in supplying us with pictures; to John Kepford, our business manager, and his staff—without whose aid this book could never have been published; and to all Juniatians who offered aid, advice, and encouragement.

INSURANCE

HUNTINGDON

GREETINGS, JUNIATIANS:

OUR BUSINESS IS INSURANCE!

We love the Insurance Business--it's been our chief interest for very many years--We would like to share our enthusiasm with you.

Just think what a fearful world it would be without the background of Insurance. Business would have to stop--there could be no confidence in the future.

Insurance is the greatest shock absorber in the world. What would be a terrible catastrophe to one is spread among a great group so that it becomes a very minor tax.

Insurance is based on the laws of average--the future becomes secure--most hazards can be predicted mathematically.

Our service has been not only indemnity in case of loss but the elimination of hazards to avoid loss. Our plan of Participating Insurance gives the good risk the savings of lower rates--Premium Savings.

Our business has grown year by year--in 1947 our premiums were almost $3,000,000.00. Submit your problems to us--maybe there is a place for you in this grand business.

Yours for Security,
